Wide Programme Is Put Before Parliament Trans-Canada Air Service Soon to Be Established

Speech From Throne At Opening of Session in Ottawa Today Shows Capital Structure of C.N.R. to Be Revised; Pensions for Blind Under Seventy Years

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—Revision of the capital structure of the Canadian National Railways and ratification of a new trade agreement with the United Kingdom are two of the important measures Parliament will be asked to deal with during the present session, according to the Speech from the Throne.

Reading the speech in the crowded, red-carpeted Senate chamber this afternoon, the Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir, set the second session of the eighteenth Parliament of Canada in being.

A programme filled with important new measures was laid before the members and senators. These include measures to provide for establishment of a Trans-Canada air service, to extend the authority of the Board of Railway Commissioners, to provide pensions for the blind at a lower age than seventy years, the standard age for old-age pensions.

TRADE AGREEMENT
The speech said agreement in principle had been reached between the British and Canadian governments on a new trade agreement which would be submitted for approval during the session.

No details were given of the proposed revision of the capital structure of the Canadian National Railways, for which numerous proposals have been advanced in the past.

In the first session of the reign of King George VI both Houses will be invited to pass a resolution of loyalty to the new sovereign.

INTERNATIONAL FIELD
Although international relations were a cause of concern, the speech said, relations between countries on this continent and conditions in Canada presented a pleasing contrast.

TEXT OF SPEECH
The Governor-General read the Speech from the Throne as follows:

"Honorable members of the Senate: Members of the House of Commons:

"It affords me much pleasure to meet you at the Commencement of another session of Parliament.
"The people of Canada, in common with the peoples of other parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations, learned with deep concern of the decision of His Majesty King Edward the Eighth to renounce the throne for himself and his descendants. In accordance with the Statute of Westminster, steps were immediately taken to set forth the request and consent of Canada to the enactment of legislation by the Parliament at Westminster for the purpose of giving effect to His Majesty's instrument of abdication and providing for the succession to the throne. In accordance with the same statute, the assent of

Allegiance Is Sworn By M.P.'s

First Duty of Session Carried Out By Members at Ottawa This Forenoon

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—Parliament Hill bustled this forenoon with great activity as senators and members of the Commons made last minute preparations for the formal opening of the session this afternoon.

The weather in Ottawa was unfavorable, with rain falling early. The unseasonable mildness of the day surprised the Middle West members, who had left their homes in zero temperatures.

ALLEGIANCE SWORN
First duty today was to swear allegiance to King George VI, and as members arrived they repaired to the House of Commons, where the oath was administered by the assistant clerk of the House. The ceremonies were brief.

Earlier, members renewed friendships and discussed general conditions in their own particular parts of the country. One learned that on the prairies, in Manitoba, the drought was extending northward, that in the maritimes the fishermen were still receiving small returns for their products. In some sections of the country industrial and economic conditions were good; in others, they were decidedly bad.

Few changes have been made either in office space for the members or in their seating arrangements in the House.

TOLMIE IN HOUSE

Party whips conferred today on the matter of accommodations for Hon. Dr. S. P. Tolmie, who returns to the Commons as member for Victoria, B.C., after an absence of some years. Dr. Tolmie ranks among the senior party councillors. He won a by-election in the British Columbia capital, June 2, last.

Co-operative Commonwealth Federation Party members met in the rooms of J. S. Woodsworth, their leader this afternoon, for a preliminary discussion on general policy. Liberals would probably hold their first caucus next Wednesday, it was stated. When the Conservatives will assemble depends on the arrival in Ottawa of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, returning from an Empire tour.

Rain Brings River Floods In Ontario

Canadian Press

Toronto, Jan. 14.—Roar of swollen waters today roared Ontario's dozing weatherman. Rain fell for almost twelve hours in the eastern and central sections of southern Ontario and at Port Hope, Toronto, St. Catharines, Peterborough, Belleville and Kingston, the threat of floods was felt.

The Ganaraska River, which has been rising to flood downtown residences and business establishments, preventing hundreds of men and women going to work and sending at least 300 children from schools.

NARROW ESCAPE

Port Hope, Ont., Jan. 14.—Scalped from the rushing Ganaraska River, Ray Croft, whose store manager, was taken unconscious to a hospital today, first victim of a flood here.

Murray to Speak Here on Radio

W. E. Gladstone Murray, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, will address a noon luncheon meeting sponsored by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce tomorrow at the Empress Hotel. He will speak on "The Radio Situation in Canada," with special reference to Victoria.

"June In January" In Ontario

Even Nature was deceived by the mild weather which a few days ago greeted people in the Belleville district of Ontario, as evidenced by the fact a lively frog, and pussycows in full bloom, usually reliable heralds of spring, were discovered by two men of that city, John Townsend and Allen Gulliver. The two, noticing a pussycow bush in full bloom near Fenton, forty miles north-east of Belleville, cut branches as proof. When returning to their car, they came upon a large green frog with brown spots, jumping about enjoying the balmy breezes and warm sunshine. The pictures show Townsend (left) and Gulliver holding the mid-winter pussycows and a close-up of the frog.

SOCIAL CREDIT LEADERS TALK

First Alberta Provincial Convention Begins as Party Caucus Ends

BKJ F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Edmonton, Jan. 14.—The first provincial convention of the Social Credit League, the political organization behind the Aberhart government in Alberta, opened here today with representatives from each constituency.

Scores of resolutions dealing with every government subject were on the agenda for the two-day meeting.

The caucus of the Social Credit members of the Legislature ended last night with no one willing to say definitely whether the latest Social Credit plan had been accepted or rejected. It was understood, however, it was accepted, if not as a whole, at least in part.

DOUGLAS THEORIES

The plan, embracing eleven principles founded on the Social Credit theories of Major C. H. Douglas, was drafted by a cabinet committee established by Premier Aberhart December 18 with John Hargrave, leader of the Social Credit Party of the United Kingdom, as technical adviser.

MARKETING PLAN

Full control of the marketing of Alberta farm products is proposed in the programme. Under the plan, an import-export organization would be established with wide powers over Alberta's internal and external trade. For instance, all the wheat exported from Alberta would be handled by the agency and processed goods not manufactured in the province, purchased outside.

The organization would have power to set an internal price for wheat perhaps higher than Winnipeg quotations. A farmer would take his wheat to the elevators just as he does today, receiving the usual tickets, recording volume.

These tickets would be turned over to the marketing organization by the farmer who would be paid the fixed price in Alberta credit, not Canadian currency. It has been argued any scheme of this sort must be monopolistic to be successful, that all wheat exported from Alberta must go through the hands of the import-export organization.

Britain Moved By Fear of War

Lady Rhondda, Visiting New York, Tells of Increasing Anxiety

Associated Press

New York, Jan. 14.—Great Britain is living in constant fear of war, said Viscountess Rhondda, a leading British feminist, in an interview here today.

"The British go to bed every night with their fingers crossed, she said, hoping devoutly they will not be roused during the night by exploding bombs, dropped by an enemy air fleet.

"We have stopped completely talking about the abdication of King Edward," said Lady Rhondda. "After all, that affected only one Englishman directly. The threat of war is so near and so constant and so inescapable that all England feels it."

Lady Rhondda publishes the Liberal British weekly, Time and Tide, and is, by virtue of her huge coal and iron interests, one of Britain's wealthiest women.

Russian women, she said, are more nearly on an equal basis with Russian men than are the women of any other nation in the world.

Federal Funds For Airports

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—A federal order-in-council has been passed by the federal government whereby the government is permitted to contribute one-third of the construction cost of airports built by cities on the proposed Trans-Canada airway. Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, announced today.

He said the order-in-council did not mention any city specifically, but would be applicable to all centres on the air route.

Canada to Float New York Loan

Refunding Issue to Be Offered Shortly Will Total $85,000,000

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—A registration statement was filed today with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission at Washington in connection with an $85,000,000 refunding loan Canada will shortly offer in the New York market. Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Finance, announced.

The loan is to retire the $85,737,000 Canadian 5 per cent war loan bonds which mature March 1.

The refunding loan will be in the form of $30,000,000 seven-year 2 1/2 per cent bonds due January 15, 1944, and $55,000,000 thirty-year 3 per cent bonds due January 15, 1967. The balance of the maturing issue will be paid off in cash from the Dominion Treasury.

GROUP OF FIRMS

The syndicate underwriting the new bond issue will be headed by Morgan, Stanley and Company, and will include thirty-nine other underwriters. The issue which will mature March 1 is payable in Canada and New York and is one of the two remaining tax-free issues of the Dominion government outstanding. The last of the Dominion's tax-free issues will mature on December 1, 1937 and is payable in Canada only.

Hospital Rate For Health Insurance

After an all-day conference in Vancouver yesterday with the executive of the B.C. Hospitals' Association, Alton Peebles, health insurance commission chairman, said here today that a satisfactory discussion had been held.

Mr. Peebles declined to announce any details of the arrangements discussed with the hospitals, stating a further conference would be held in two weeks.

The subjects under consideration, he said, were the rate per day to be paid for health insurance patients, a specific definition of the hospital day, whether the day rate would include X-ray, serum, and medicines, and the methods of handling accounts.

Next week the commission will discuss terms with the doctors.

Ask Broadcast Of Coronation

Cathedral Delegation Interviews CBC Manager; Victoria Bells May Go on Air

A national network programme of an elaborate character in connection with the coronation of King George VI is expected to evolve from representations made yesterday by a Christ Church Cathedral delegation to W. E. Gladstone Murray, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

The delegation, composed of Dean Quinlan, George Phillips and George Carter, specifically asked Mr. Murray if it would be possible to arrange for a Canadian broadcast of the coronation ceremonies in May.

During the course of the interview the Christ Church Cathedral peal of bells was mentioned and it was suggested they might be worked into the proposed coronation programme.

While not giving any definite pledge, Mr. Murray thought the idea was a splendid one and promised to give it every consideration.

EFFORT TO END AUTO STRIKE

Officials of General Motors and Union Heads Meet at Lansing, Michigan

Associated Press

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 14.—Officials of the General Motors Corporation and of the United Automobile Workers whose strikes have slashed deeply into the company's automotive production, met for the first time today across a conference table in the office of Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan.

Governor Murphy had asked them to meet him "without condition or prejudice" to seek "an immediate and peaceful termination" of the strikes which have thrown 114,000 General Motors wage earners out of work.

TROOPS ON GUARD

Even as the men sat down behind locked doors to seek a solution in the tense strike deadlock, additional National Guard troops ordered out by the Governor reached the city of Flint—"hot spot" of the strike—to assist civil authorities in maintaining order.

Nine hundred additional National Guardsmen move toward Flint to join 1,400 already in strike zone.

Authoritative sources said continuance of the present situation would mean complete suspension of General Motors deliveries to dealers in about three weeks.

Goering Told in Rome Friendship Unaffected By Agreement With Britain

By ANDRUE BERDING
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Rome, Jan. 14.—Official Italy told Germany's first minister emphatically, it was reliably reported today, that the new Italo-British Mediterranean agreement does not change Italian friendship for the Nazi Reich.

At the same time official sources said Italy was using the occasion of Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering's visit for an effort to keep Italo-German volunteers from Spain pending international decisions on the neutrality question.

TALK FOR HOUR

As one army airman to another, Goering talked to Premier Mussolini for more than an hour at the Palazzo Venezia. One of Goering's many titles is Air Minister; Il Duce won an army pilot's license two days ago.

The formal assurances given to Goering state clearly that the "gentleman's agreement" on Mediterranean status quo, signed by Italy and Britain, will not change Italo-German

Police at Everett Holding Man's Garment, Cleaned Of Large Bloodstains

Associated Press

Everett, Wash., Jan. 14.—Police searching for the kidnapper-slayer of ten-year-old Charles Mattson today held as a clue in the widespread search a pair of trousers sent from a hotel here to a cleaning establishment and covered with blood from waist to cuffs.

The cleaning company reported a driver had picked up the garment at a hotel Wednesday and that their condition had not been noticed until after the driver had taken them to the plant.

Henry Morton, employee at the establishment, cleaned the trousers, but suggested his employers should notify police and have them investigated.

Reward Posters Up in the U.S.

Federal Offer of $10,000 For Arrest of Slayer of Mattson Boy Broadcast

Associated Press

Washington, Jan. 14.—The United States Justice Department today mailed posters announcing the federal government's $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the kidnapper and slayer of Charles Mattson, to every law enforcement agency in the country.

The reward was offered by Attorney-General Cummings soon after the body of the ten-year-old Tacoma boy was found last Monday.

DESCRIPTION OF ABDUCTOR

The poster described the kidnapper as follows:

"Age, about thirty years; height, five feet seven or eight inches; weight, 145 to 165 pounds; complexion, swarthy. Peculiarities: Did not stand erect, dimple in chin, high cheek bones, nose appeared to be broken a little below center, had hairy hands; speech, slightly foreign accent, spoke brokenly, appeared to be of southern European extraction. Persons having any information were asked by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to telephone or telegraph the nearest police office collect or to telephone the Federal Bureau's headquarters here.

Just before appearing before a House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee in connection with the Justice Department's annual supply bill, Hoover told reporters today:

"The same policy prevails. We won't discuss the case until we catch him."

He added quickly: "I don't mean him—I mean him or them."

SUSPECT IN JAIL

Associated Press
Ritzville, Wash., Jan. 14.—Sheriff Melven Osterreich said today he was holding a prisoner who seemed "a dead ringer for the described kidnapper-slayer of little Charles Mattson."

He said federal agents had been notified of the arrest of the man, booked as Wilbur Roy Porter, forty-one. He was charged with vagrancy.

Osterreich said the man admitted being in Seattle, Tacoma, Everett and Olympia during the past week. He said there was blood on his handkerchief.

MAN QUESTIONED

Sacramento, Calif., Jan. 14 (Associated Press).—The Sacramento police today took into custody a man, whose name they declined to disclose, for questioning in connection with the Mattson kidnapping case.

Captain of Police Fritz Kaminsky said the man had scratches on his face and said Dr. Mattson, but was his physician while he was in Tacoma, but denied any connection with the case.

Kaminsky said the man's description tallies with that of the sought fugitive.

BUSSES HALTED

Seattle, Jan. 14.—State police, patrolling highways in an expanding area around where the body of kidnapped Charles Mattson, ten, was found, halted several buses bound here and Everett today, but drivers said no passengers were removed.

The bus examinations started after a report had reached here that federal agents based at Everett had asked that a certain Seattle-bound Everett bus be halted and a man clad in a grey coat, low-pulled cap and with pockets stuffed with maps, be removed for questioning.

The driver of the bus told newspapermen he recalled no such passenger and that his bus was passed by officers.

SUSPECT IN CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Jan. 14 (Associated Press).—The driver of a Washington-licensed automobile, reported to resemble the kidnapper of Charles Mattson, was hunted in Los Angeles today by police.

The machine was seen last night on south Central Avenue by J. E. Stout, a baker, who said it sped past him at seventy miles an hour.

A traffic signal soon stopped both Stout's car and the other, giving Baker a chance to inspect it closely. He said the driver was swarthy, with long, prominent sideburns, and resembled descriptions he had read of the Mattson abductor.

PLATE PAINTED OVER

The Washington license plate had been partially painted over with the 1936 California colors of orange and black, Stout told Detective Lieut. Robert S. Lockard. The automobile was a black sedan of a late model.

STAINS PROVED TO BE BLOOD

Everett, Jan. 14 (Associated Press).—Chemical test of stains in a car held at the City Hall here in connection with the search for the killer of Charles Mattson, ten-year-old Tacoma boy, showed today they were blood.

Believe Missing Indian Drowned

Discovery of a drifting boat with no signs of life aboard has led provincial police to assume that Alexander George, an Indian who has been missing from Kyoquot since December 17, was drowned.

The Indian left Kyoquot on December 17 and was never seen again. His launch was found drifting near Yakoo Bay by officers aboard the provincial police launch No. 7.

No Quack Plans For Unemployed

Problem Too Complex For
Hasty Remedies, Says
Hon. N. M. Rogers

Canadian Press
Calgary, Jan. 14.—No quick, quack remedies would solve unemployment problems, Hon. Norman M. Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor, has informed the Calgary Ministerial Association.

In a letter to the association, the Minister of Labor said:
"The whole problem of unemployment is a very complex one and no quick or quack remedy has, as yet, been devised in any country, or under any new economic system, which will give every man the type of employment he wishes."

WORK SUGGESTION
The Ministerial Association had urged a federal work-and-wages programme, finding the farm placement scheme inadequate.

"To put every unemployed person on a government payroll," said Mr. Rogers, "would lead us into trouble infinitely more serious than those which we are now facing." He referred to the high cost of such a scheme.

Voluntary effort to aid the unemployed was urged by the labor minister, and he suggested the Ministerial Association consider the setting up of voluntary educational groups, establishment of recreational centres and sponsoring of plans for casual extra employment, such as "man-a-block" plan.

Human Blood Traces Lead to Arrest For Girl's Murder

Associated Press
Peiping, Jan. 14.—Pathologists indicated today they had found human blood on articles in the home of a foreign suspect held in the shocking death of Pamela Werner, seventeen-year-old British girl.

It also was reported the man was a seerophile, whose morbid interest in the dead had led him to witness many executions. Police withheld his identity, hinting only he was a Briton.

The girl's mutilated body was found January 8 in an outlying neighborhood. Police said a pair of shoes, a dagger and a fragment of a handkerchief, all blood stained, were found in the suspect's home.

Dates for the by-election to fill the vacancy was not set.

Dr. Poulin's resignation leaves the house standing by parties: Union Nationale, seventy-five; Liberal, fourteen, vacant, one.

LIFE SENTENCE

Cincinnati, Jan. 14.—(Associated Press).—A jury of eight men and four women yesterday evening convicted John Rueger, fifty-one, of second degree murder in the "death kiss" slaying of nineteen-year-old Alberta Judd, a former employee. The verdict carries a sentence of life imprisonment. During the trial Rueger said he had been planning to kill himself. He said he kissed the young woman, felt like killing himself immediately, and as he attempted to use a revolver, the woman was killed.

Reversing the stand of their occidental sisters, who are in the forefront of peace movements, educated Chinese women have taken the lead in agitating for a war to drive the Japanese invaders out of North China and Manchukuo. The kidnapping of General Chiang Kai-shek by war advocates was the climax of events, such as pictured above—girl students enlisted in an infantry regiment (left) and another of their number (right) exhorting a street crowd to support a united Chinese nation.

Plan to Compare Moon and Desert

Astronomers Will Climb
Mountain to Look at Arizona Wastes Through Telescope, Seeking New Facts About Satellite

By HOWARD BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
Ithaca, N.Y., Jan. 14.—Cornell astronomers want to look at an Arizona desert, so they will take a telescope to the top of a 12,600-foot mountain and look down.

Then they will point the telescope upward and look at the moon.

They hope to discover whether the airless, waterless moon is like the Arizona desert in any way.

The Cornell scientists will take the telescope, now being built, a mile higher than any such instrument ever has gone.

TO USE SPECTROSCOPE
In their research, the astronomers will use the spectroscopic instrument which identifies the kind of atoms present in far-off stars. They will see what the "desert" rocks of Arizona look like in the spectroscopic. If they spot similar rays coming from the moon's yellow face, then one of the mysteries of all time will be solved.

Most lofty mountain air is too turbulent, but the Arizona top is one of the world's rare exceptions. It is the higher of the twin San Francisco Peaks, one 12,600 feet, the other 11,500, eight miles north of Flagstaff, where the Lowell Observatory, at 7,300 feet, is the world's highest.

ON PLATEAU
The mountains top a plateau, where Flagstaff sits, and the plateau rises from the "desert." This arid foundation accounts for the calm "seeing" air of San Francisco Peaks. Up in this "half way house" to the stars, the astronomers hope to see better other celestial sights, the "compounds" forming on cooling "red" stars that may be in the preliminary stages of solidification into huge planets.

Home Taxation Relief Sought

Canadian Construction Association Urges Lighter
Burden on Building

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—Taxation relief for building and real estate, a subsidized system of apprenticeship, formation of accident prevention organization to lower workmen's compensation costs and support of the Home Improvement Plan were advocated by the Canadian Construction Association in resolutions adopted at the closing of the nineteenth annual convention here. Election of officers wound up the session, with F. G. Rutley of Montreal being returned to the presidency for a second year.

The present system of taxation, the main resolution stated, was "one of the chief causes" of the lag in building construction, which system was "unfair and unjust to owners of buildings and real estate."

"New building has been and will be retarded and unemployment prolonged until this condition is rectified," it continued.

"This association resolves that every endeavor be made through municipal, provincial and federal governments and through any other channels of influence to have the federal government appoint a commission to investigate the entire system of taxation and to recommend changes and improvements to make it equitable."

ROOF REPAIRS ARE APPROVED

City School Authorizes Work
While Legal Power Is Uncertain

The City School Board yesterday evening found itself in the position of having approved a $700 work undertaken without having definite knowledge of its power to do so without special provisions.

The situation arose over the much-discussed proposal to re-roof the technical school building, which has been reported in a bad state of repair.

The board was presented with two schemes for the repair. One was offered by Donald Cameron, works supervisor, who said the job could be done at a maximum cost of $700. The other scheme included the tenders of Luney Brothers and Parfitt Brothers for the job. Their prices were $1,675 and $1,390 respectively.

On recommendation of the building and grounds committee the board ordered the work to proceed as day labor under the supervision of Mr. Cameron.

It was then drawn to the board's attention that the expenditure might constitute an extraordinary one which would have to be properly sanctioned before the work could be authorized. After approving the work the board decided to seek advice on its legal status.

Trustees Kenneth Ferguson and Charles Bishop voted against the board's action. They felt the expenditure should not be approved before the current year's estimates were prepared. They thought Mr. Cameron should prepare plans and specifications and have tenders called for the job.

They both expressed themselves opposed to the method of expenditure after the vote of approval had been given.

Vancouver, Jan. 14.—Stephen Leacock, Canadian economist and humorist, told 1,500 students at the University of British Columbia yesterday in the course of an address that he was retiring from the public platform.

"This is my last public lecture in Canada—forever," said the former McGill University professor. He had agreed to give lectures in Philadelphia and Harrisburg, Penn., he said, but after filling those engagements he would retire.

"I shall retire, and watch the tide come in and out on Lake Ootchie-kootchie," he declared smilingly. "It's an ideal place to retire—the tides run very slowly."

Today at Ottawa

TODAY IN OTTAWA THE SECOND session of the eighteenth Parliament of Canada has begun its business. It is suggested that it will be a short and lively one. Every session at Ottawa and in all the provincial capitals of the Dominion is launched in this sort of way. Parliamentary sessions are seldom short and, generally speaking, they are times of great activity. To the right and to the left of Mr. Speaker much verbiage is bandied about. Perhaps it would not be infirm to suggest that about 75 per cent of the volubility might be dispensed with—a saving to the taxpayers of Canada. Under our much-to-be-commended system, however, it will be over this.

Prime Minister King had the satisfaction today of meeting a House with the comforting knowledge that out of a membership of 245 he could count on the support in all matters of vital interest to the country of around 170 who may be called "straight Liberals." A statesman of his experience, of course, does not require to count noses in the "narrow party column"; he relies upon the policies to which he has pledged himself and the party which has supported him through thick and thin from the time he formed his first government in 1921. True, in 1930, the Canadian people thought it was time for a change. Not even the fact that their external business was worth $2,600,000,000 at that time, that the number of persons out of work in the Dominion was less than 200,000, made no difference—all they wanted was a change. The Canadian people got their change and it was small change.

The fiscal year ending with March, 1933, revealed to the taxpayers of Canada that their buying and selling with the outside world—the business which represents their economic life-blood—had dwindled to a dollar-and-cent value less than it was in 1913, when the Dominion's population was nearly 3,000,000 less than it was four years ago.

During the session under way, however, there will be discussed matters of particular import to the Canadian people. Our national debt is almost within nodding distance of $3,000,000,000—a big load for less than 11,000,000 people to carry! This financial problem naturally will be the main one to which Premier King will address himself. Happily for Canada, and for the Prime Minister, our Minister of Finance is Hon. Charles A. Dunning who learned his job in the hard school of experience. His budget will be awaited with more than ordinary interest.

It will be the task of Premier King to present to the House details of what now has come to be known as Britain's "constitutional crisis." The general hope will be that there will be no discussion of this closed chapter of an unprecedented "incident" in a monarchical system which runs out in a frenzied dictatorship. The whole business of the abdication of Edward the Eighth and the accession of King George the Sixth should not be allowed to consume more than a few minutes of time.

Until Parliament has had a chance to get down to "brass tacks," of course, there is little more that can be said. What can be said, and quite reasonably, is that Premier King and his colleagues and supporters have entered into the second session of the eighteenth Parliament with a realization that this is the time in the fortunes of Canada that demands sound policies which will fulfill the democratic ideal of the greatest good for the greatest number. This doctrine, it is not necessary to say, is the guiding principle of the man who is our Prime Minister.

One Day to Europe

TO EUROPE AND BACK IN ONE day, at 500 miles an hour, flying 50,000 feet high, is not an idle dream for an indefinite future, but is a near-actual possibility. Mr. Donald E. Keyhoe, former aide to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in his article in the February Cosmopolitan, "Aviation Is Going 'Upstairs' in 1937," writes that within six or seven months five leading air lines will begin joint experiments in stratosphere flying. Commercial lines are racing to be the first aloft with their "flying tube."

"Aviation, especially commercial long-distance aviation, is on its way 'upstairs,'" Mr. Keyhoe says. "Speed at lower levels has almost reached its limit. Transport planes are cruising at heights of 10,000 to 15,000 feet to decrease danger from bad weather. But even this is not satisfactory. There are storms and fogs which go much higher. The answer is the stratosphere."

From experiments already made, Mr. Keyhoe draws a definite picture of what stratosphere flying will be like. The plane is not unlike our present big planes, but with important differences—a cabin within a cabin, to withstand the pressure of the manufactured atmosphere within. The first step towards all this is expected in 1937 with regular operation of mail planes in the sub-stratosphere. It is possible that experimental passenger-plane operation will begin at the same time.

Thus, man bends material forces to his will. But his own collective spirit in its racial or international aspects eludes rational control.

So, at the moment, from the way things are going, the possibility of being able to make a trip to Europe in one day is less intriguing to us than the possibility of there being nothing left of Europe to go to.

"When Do We Eat?"

FROM NEW YORK LAST SATURDAY came a dispatch telling us that Professor Albert Einstein had discovered a whole new realm of radiation, more extensive in range than known radiation types like light, heat and sound, giving further support to his theory of relativity.

The scientist and his assistant, Dr. N. Rosen, furnish mathematical proof of the existence of this realm in a paper published today in the journal of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia. We read:

The radiation visualized in Einstein's mathematical concept is made up of gravitational waves which parallel electro-magnetic waves in size and frequency but have different properties.

The only one of these properties as yet demonstrated, the paper continues, is the ability to pull comets and planets out of their courses as they move around the sun.

Neither scientist, the newspaper said, was available for amplification of the announcement of the discovery because Dr. Rosen is in Russia and Dr. Einstein requested his period of mourning for his wife, who died December 20, be respected.

What the average man in the street wants to know, of course, is what amount of radiation he is going to get in his shack on, for example, Hillside, Victoria, or in any part of the world—what the man and woman looking for the next meal can cash in on this new radiation.

Far be it from us to discount the value of research as far as it deals with the unknown. What is to the point, however, is the question as to what is going to be done by these scientists for humanity. There are professors galore. They tell us much of the things in which the ordinary man, the ordinary woman, is not interested.

Shall we put it vulgarly? An empty belly gets cold comfort from "a whole new realm of radiation."

A Contrast

IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE ABDICATION of King Edward VIII, a Hollywood executive was reported to have cabled an offer of $1,000,000 or so for the appearance of the ex-king and Mrs. Simpson in a screen romance. To most people, undoubtedly, this breach of good taste revealed the extent to which some film executives would go for publicity.

But another incident has occurred which helps offset this unpleasant impression. Following the death of a young airline hostess, in a plane crash, a Hollywood producer has announced that he has deleted from his new picture a number of scenes in which the girl appeared, sending the negatives to the bereaved family.

That he scorned the opportunity to cash in on the morbid curiosity of fans should help revive faith in filmland ethics.

Even With All His Care

THERE PROBABLY WAS NOT A more cautious man than Ernest Courcelles of Detroit. He never bought an automobile, never rode in one, and never crossed a street without first carefully looking both ways.

It was not altogether fear of pain that prompted such extreme caution; it was the knowledge that even a scratch might cause his death. For Courcelles was a victim of hemophilia, the condition which makes bleeding from a trivial wound almost impossible to stop.

Despite all his precautions, however, Mr. Courcelles was hit by a motor car the other day and died within an hour. That even the greatest of care could not ward off such a death should be a solemn thought for pedestrians in general.

Notes

The selfish should forget themselves and work for others because we are the others.

But if we are such smart people, why must all of our machines be made fool-proof?

Wouldn't it be fun if they wouldn't tell us how wonderful a new movie star is and let us guess.

Maybe human life is sacred, after all. Sacred things are the ones that people no longer care about.

An advertisement presents a beauty preparation to "prevent crow's feet around the eyes." The wise woman, however, will shop early.

One of the excellent records hung up in 1936 is the substantial decline in lynchings in the southern states. The year saw nine lynchings—and while it may be remarked that that was just nine too many, it should be noticed that it was eleven fewer than 1935's total. Furthermore, there were thirty-five cases in which courageous officers of the law prevented attempted lynchings; and thirty of these cases were recorded in the deep south. Altogether, sixty-nine people—all but seven of them colored—were saved from violence at the hands of mobs. It is cause for congratulation. Also it emphasizes a fact which outside critics too often overlook—that the average southern official, supported by the sentiment of his own locality, is aware of his duty and brave enough to carry it out.

Loose Ends

Mr. Rogers is surprised, as he may well be, by the curious behavior of the public—we act on a hair trigger these days—Mrs. Noggins knits a quilt and thereby hangs a life story.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

HAIR TRIGGER

HON. NORMAN ROGERS, federal Minister of Labor, says he is surprised at the sudden swings of public sentiment from the dark depths of pessimism and depression to the airy heights of exaggerated optimism. Mr. Rogers may well wonder. The sudden collapse of public confidence a few years ago, the feeling of despair, was surprising enough. The sudden revival of confidence, the overnight realization by the public at large that everything is going to be all right, is still more remarkable.

In both cases the public is exaggerating the real conditions. It conditions change 10 per cent for the worse, the public immediately acts as if they were 100 per cent worse. If they change 10 per cent for the better, the public acts as if they were 100 per cent perfect; yes, and even if they only seem to be better, it is enough to satisfy the public, so that you have the current spectacle of men whose wages have less actual purchasing power than they had a year ago, imagining that they are far better off and going out and buying an automobile.

Mr. Rogers is puzzled at the exaggerated optimism of the present day, which has followed the hysterical pessimism of recent years. It is a mysterious process, indeed, served by a most elaborate technique. When the Bureau of Statistics issues a return showing that business is up 10 per cent it means nothing to the average man, but, developed with the new technique, this rather dull and insignificant statistic immediately takes on a glamorous like a movie star. It is painted and interpreted by financial writers, hallowed by politicians, explained by radio commentators until my friend, Mrs. Noggins, is convinced that she has become prosperous, even though the price of chicken feed has gone far higher than the price of eggs, and Mr. Pudbury trades in his old car, even though he is poorer, in actual purchasing power, than he has been for six years.

Thus everybody feels the depression acutely, worried about it, suffered from it, even though the average North American family was probably living on a higher general standard during all the depression years than the average family in any period of history; and the rich, who felt the depression least in fact, felt it most in mind. And now that it is over, the average family, having to pay more in increased prices than it will get in increased wages, is on top of the world again, feels that it has come through hideous hardships and can now live a life of normal luxury again.

Through the new technique of communication, the machinery of mass psychology, public sentiment will become increasingly unreliable and increasingly dangerous to fool with. Our grandfathers didn't know as much as we do, but they had time to cool off before they did something foolish. Now we know so much, we react so quickly to the least political and economic ripple we have so little time and so little desire to think, that some day we may do something regrettable, as Mr. Rogers fears.

HISTORY IN PATCHES

MRS. NOGGINS has taken to working with knitting needles on her way to town of a morning, and I have been growing curious about the ultimate objective of her labors. She seems to knit innumerable square patches, of various colors, apparently of no use for anything.

"Well, you see, sir," said she when I could contain my curiosity no longer, "this 'ere is a life work, as you might say. A quilt it is, you know, to put on a bed. I've bin workin' on it now for thirty-seven year, off and on, startin' in London and then in Liverpool and then in Winnipeg and now 'ere. Right now, I'm tryin' to get it finished for Alf. Alf, you know, is goin' to be married in May, when the daffodils is out, 'im bein' so fond of flowers, we thought May would be best, you know. Well, 'e 'as bought the neatest little 'ouse, you know, and fixed up all the plumbers 'imself. I tell you a gal is lucky to get a plumber because you would see the bathroom Alf 'as fixed up. 'Well, as I was sayin', this quilt is made up of little squares like this 'ere, each a different color, dependin' on the odds and ends of wool that 'appen to be around at the time. Well, sir, each single patch in this quilt, 'as a memory for me. My 'ole life, you might say, is right there in that quilt. You take this red patch 'ere. That was Alf when 'e was born, knitted the very day 'e came, and we do it 'imself every day, 'e bein' as our neighbor's barn on the prairie burned down that day."

"Yes, that red patch is Alf. That pink one there is our first wedding anniversary. It's a bit faded now, ain't it? My old man and me went to Blackpool that day and that pink patch 'as allus bin Blackpool for me. After the first anniversary, we didn't bother about them much, you know. That pale green patch is the second anniversary and we didn't go to Blackpool that time. I quit knittin' any more anniversaries. That blue patch is Alf's oldest brother Burt, and the yellow one is Annie, who's expectin' her second any day now. Poor Annie never was beautiful, but a good 'ousekeeper."

"Oh, I can go back over me 'ole life on the quilt, you know. It's all writ there as plain as can be. You see this bright blue bit, 'ere? That's the Rocky Mountains. I knitted that the day we come west from Winnipeg and I remember the mountains seemin' so 'igh, you know, kind of hingspin' and I henjoyed knittin' that one, except the train was so 'ot and some Bohunk wimmin was cookin' garlic in the car. That blue patch will allus be the Rockies and garlic to me. The Rockies is fine, ain't they, but I never could stand garlic."

"Now that one there is the beginnin' of the war. I was on it the day the war started. That's the battle of Ypres where Burt was wounded, and this 'ere is the Armistice. You might call this one Kaiser Bill, if you like, on account of it was done the day he snuck off to 'olland. I didn't do much for a long time after Kaiser Bill but that there is the depression. I tore the wool for that out of one of Alf's old sweaters when the 'ard times come. You could call that patch the crash, I guess, heggins bein' down to twenty cents when that one was knitted."

"Well, we come along to this 'ere one, Roosevelt, and that there's Helly Salasary, the Ethiopian fellow, and this 'ere is Alf's engagement—I was knittin' it when he come 'ome and told us about the plumbin' 'e was puttin' in their 'ouse, you know—and that purple one is the Boggs's second one, a boy, and this 'ere mauve-colored one is Mrs. Simpson. I almost tore it out of the quilt, you know; but that wouldn't do no good for the Humpire, and, besides, I'm in a 'urry, because Alf is goin' to be married soon as the daffodils is out and the plumbin' all fixed up."

Letters to the Editor

FAMILY MADE HAPPY

To the Editor:—Just a small space in your paper wishing our best thanks to the Friendly Help for their gift of cash, which enabled my family to have a real Christmas Day and all that goes with it. There didn't seem to be any charity with the giving; either, which made us all feel the happier.

I hope the others mothers and families made out as well as we did, if only for the Christmas. I think that's all we looked for. So here is wishing Miss Grubb and Mr. Winslow the best, and best wishes to the staff.

A MOTHER TRYING TO KEEP OFF RELIEF

"SHEARING THE SHEEP"

To the Editor:—In comes the cold weather and up goes bread. It has been said that "it is not so much the selfishness of the wolf as the sheepishness of the sheep" which helps exploitation of the poor to continue.

The wheat grower hits the miller, the miller knocks the baker, the baker jabs the retailer and the poor foot the bill, while the "gent" who runs the flour mill keeps the harvest. In the face of this reactionary, whose names are legion, complain about "Socialism destroying our civilization." Here is a plain case of the man on relief being "relieved" of his relief.

THAT A+B THEOREM

To the Editor:—As we were told on many occasions in Alberta that, any schoolboy could understand the A+B theorem, I fail to see why Mr. Averill cannot produce a reasonable exposition of this theory in 500 words. If he can reduce Douglas's mass of verbosity to a few simple words that can be readily grasped by people of ordinary intelligence, he will be doing a great service to his cause.

No member of the various commissions that have inquired into Social Credit appears to have been able to extract "the mathematical precision" said to be contained in the A+B theorem. The supposed loss of purchasing power from the B costs is open to argument and has never been accepted as a sound proposition by any recognized authority on such matters.

OUR FROZEN ASSETS

To the Editor:—The article entitled "Bright and Cold," by Nellie McCutcheon in the Times of December 30 was appreciated. It was very interesting and descriptive of the real value of our Canadian winters.

Winter time should be the main show, the grand parade, a new treasure-trove for Canada. Let us tell the world we are the original Lady of the Snows, a land of ice caverns and glaciers, a great white playground.

Invite the clear-eyed youth of the world, all seekers of physical perfection and health, the millions of tourists from every land—to come and enjoy with us the exhilarating happiness of contact with clean crisp air and the thrill of winter sports.

With picture and story advertise and blaze the trail of our four millionaires of red-capped snow children from the Atlantic to the Pacific, of the Maritime provinces' facilities for long distance skating and ice-boat sailing—Quebec city's celebrated toboggan slide and city's French-Canadian sleighing, ski and curling carnivals—Montreal's famous ice palace and their speedy hockey teams with lightning-like skill and play from end to end of the great arena.

Toronto, the queen city, with more than twenty municipal "free" open-air rinks for games and band skating and the well-known High Park snow-slide—then the vast white prairies with unlimited opportunities for snow-shoe racing and jingling sleigh bell rides.

Vancouver with a miniature Alps at its very back-door, an ice-covered mountain range for the hardy and daring to climb.

The Forbidden Plateau, our own fairland of this island for winter pastimes calling to all lovers of the great outdoors and abundant health.

And perhaps some day Victoria will get in step with the rest of the Dominion and possess again a magnificent ice-skating arena for its people and her visiting friends. L.C.C. Douglas Street.

LAKE ODDITIES

From The Montreal Star

In the island of Flores exists a strange phenomenon; two lakes separated only by a thin barrier of rock. Both are opaque and look like huge lakes of paint, for one is ruby-red and the other turquoise blue. Nature has made other queer lakes in different parts of the world. In Trinidad there is the pitch lake, from which millions of tons of pure pitch have been excavated, yet the level remains as high as ever. East Africa has a wonderful lake of pure soda in crystalline form—sixteen miles long and eight wide. It is fed by waters carrying the soda in solution, and the sun causes the water to evaporate as fast as it is brought down. Even queerer is the lake of soap, in Grant County, Washington, U.S.A. In windy weather the surface is covered with thick scapulae and dark-haired people hesitate to swim there, for they come out blondes! But the oddest lake of all is Cerknica in Jugoslavia. It is ten square miles and sixty feet deep. Every spring it empties and the bed, which is full of fertile loam, is used for raising crops.

FOLLY AT THE CROSSINGS

From The Ottawa Journal

The board of railway commissioners has issued a report concerning traffic accidents and near-accidents at protected railway crossings for six months of last year. The Canadian National reported seventy-seven cases "where there was danger at protected crossings due to the negligence of those using the crossing," and the Canadian Pacific 244 such cases. "Ignored stop signal" is common in the list. Many cars—twenty-five, in fact—drove into traffic gates when they were down. Six drove into the side of trains. Fifty-seven crossed in front of the locomotive, regardless of stop signal; 131 passed over the crossing when the bell was ringing or wiggling working. A case reported by the commission from Fairville, N.B., is:

"Car went under gates while being lowered. Warning bell ringing." And ten days later:

"Same car as above. Went under gates while being lowered. Brakes poor. Warning bell ringing." What can publicity do with drivers such as this?

OR EVEN TWO LINES

From The Peterborough Examiner

A New York bullfinch has been trained to whistle "God Save the King." If the bird could be taught to sing two verses of "O Canada" he would be able to accomplish something that few Canadians can do.

THE LITTLE THINGS

I thought with a heavy and burdened mind

Of the tasks that fill each day.

The things so small—they do not count.

And in the end—don't pay.

And I felt despondent and full of grief.

For the work I must leave undone

Just to keep on doing the little things

From morn—till the set of sun.

And I prayed each day within my troubled soul.

And oh, it was so sweet.

"It takes the little things in life,

To make the whole complete."

So let me feel Thy strength, dear Lord.

That I may to Thee cling.

And never tire along the way.

Of doing the little thing.

Modern Etiquette

By ROBERTA LEE

Q. When a man and a woman are divorced, and by chance meet at some social function, should they display friendliness towards each other?

A. No. Etiquette demands that they meet as strangers, for unless there had been some good reason for making friendliness impossible, they would not be divorced.

Q. Should invitations be sent to people who are in mourning?

A. Yes. These friends should not be slighted, although they are not expected to attend.

Gets Surprise Contract

Declarer, Who Makes Dangerous No Trump "Feeler,"
Has Luck With Him to Gain Top Score

By W. E. McKENNEY

While a good game of contract is marked by precision in bidding, there are times when a player must bid his hand on the "take-a-chance" principle. Opponents have a habit, if they can do so without too much cost, of pushing the other side out of a safe contract, until the alternatives are either the acceptance of a small penalty to punish over-enthusiastic bidders, or the probability of defeat, if the bidding goes farther.

When a player can outbid strong opponents and reach an unbeatable game contract of his own, he can rest with the feeling that he has not only gone to the wars, but is home again with his own record unmarred by defeat.

SOLUTION TO PREVIOUS CONTRACT PROBLEM

Today's hand, a battle of bidding, was played at a recent duplicate game in Westfield House, with W. E. Carey sitting North, and Meyer sitting South.

Bidding of both East and West is

♠ K 9	♠ K 10	♠ A K 7 5	♠ 8 6 2
♥ A Q J 7 2	♥ 7 6 4 3	♥ 5	♥ 4
♦ A Q J 9	♦ 8 6 5 4 3	♦ 2	♦ 10 7 5 3
♣ 8	♣ J 8 5 2	♣ J 9 6 3	♣ K 4

Duplicate—E & W, vul.
South West North East
Pass 1 4 Double 2 4
3 4 4 4 4 4
5 5 5 5 5 5
S. N. T. Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead—♠ A. 23

Today's Contract Problem

South has opened the bidding with one club, which West overcalls with a "psychic" heart. North and South reach a contract of six hearts. Should West double?

(Blind)	♠ J 9 7 6
♠ 10 2	♠ J 5 4
♥ 3	♥ Q 7 2

Solution in next issue. 23

open to question. After North's double, East's raise, and South's bid of hearts, it is doubtful if West should show another suit, and a bid of four spades at once might have ended the bidding.

When South made his bid of five no trump, it was based on a number of considerations. His opponents were vulnerable, hence North and South could take a set of three tricks to save game. His partner had doubled and might hold a spade stopper, and if worst came to worst, he could go to six hearts, with probably no loss as great as a vulnerable game.

Much to his surprise, his five no trump bid was passed all around, and when the opening lead was made he could count eleven tricks for his game.

East and West could make five spades, losing a spade and a heart, and North and South would lose two tricks at a contract of six. So the bid, designed as a feeler, turned out to be one that gave Carey and Wechsler a top score on the hand.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

SAVED FROM MOSLEM TERROR

Some 400 years ago, the Mohammedan drove the Buddhist from the land of Java. In the wake of the invaders lay the ruins of many magnificent temples. But a few, they overlooked, and one has remained to this day, saved by the heavy growth of the jungle that crept over it.

It is the Borobudur near Djokja, really an Indian monument to the Gautama Buddha, some say the greatest of all. It was built between 760 and 850 A.D. and in it is the history of the Buddha in 28 images.

The story goes that, when the invaders came in the sixteenth century, a wise man of Buddha called all the devoted about him, and they covered the temple deep in earth. Plant life grew on the mound, and the Mohammedans passed it by unheeded.

That may be only legend, but the Borobudur today is the shrine of many a pilgrim in Java. Its picture is shown on a stamp issued for the Dutch Indies, by the Netherlands, in 1930.

Makes Appeal For More Fuel Funds

More Money Needed to Alleviate Cold Weather Distress

Appreciation of assistance already given and a plea to other generous

Victorians to contribute further to the special fund to buy fuel for needy citizens was voiced today by Alderman John A. Worthington chairman of the relief committee.

Donations already received have been of very material assistance in alleviating the distress of many city families during the cold weather, the alderman stated, but more funds are needed if the fund is to meet its objective.

Those able to make donations are requested to communicate with the relief office by telephoning G 8104.

The relief chairman today acknowl-

ed contributions from Mrs. A. Stuart Robertson, Mrs. Harry Rowley, Maude V. M. Worthington, Sir Percy Lake, Ministering Circle of King's Daughters, Mrs. Lorne Drum, B.C. Cement Co. Limited, Mrs. L. M. Dunsen, Ora F. Pearson, A. Friend, Mrs. J. Hunter, M. A. Wyatt and anonymous donors.

A letter from Evans, Coleman and Johnson Brothers suggesting the board instal insulation in additional city schools this year, following the success of the installations in Margaret Jenkins and Quadra Street

Schools, was referred to the building and grounds committee by the City School Board yesterday evening. The firm pointed out that the installation had saved the board $948.15 in fuel bills during the last three years.

Lovely Gowns At Ottawa Function

State Dinner and Reception At Rideau Hall

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—Government House in Ottawa last night saw one of the most brilliant functions in its history. From all parts of the Dominion military, political and ecclesiastical dignitaries together with the diplomatic corps attended the state dinner, which traditionally precedes the opening of Parliament.

This dinner—not held last year owing to mourning regulations—was the first formal function of Lord Tweedsmuir's regime as Governor-General and the first attended by members of the present Liberal government.

It marked the beginning of the three days of ceremony and pageantry at which lovely women will wear gorgeous gowns. They will have difficulty in outshining the men as they appeared tonight.

STRIKING UNIFORMS

Vivid scarlet and blue of dress uniforms, glittering epaulettes and braid, shining swords and spurs, the rich tones of papal purple, contributed to a spectacle long to be remembered by those who took part. Then men received by Lord Tweedsmuir, dined in the great ballroom at table centred with huge silver bowls of daffodils and tulips.

After dinner, Lady Tweedsmuir received the guests in the Chinese room, where they were joined by their wives and daughters who in turn were presented to their Excellencies. Later supper was served in the enclosed ballroom.

LOVELY GOWNS

Bearing in mind the competition they would receive from the vivid tones of the men, the women chose gowns in keeping with the occasion. Her Excellency's choice was lustrous oyster satin with crossed folded back and gracefully voluminous skirt. Her tiara and bracelets had a touch of red as did her shoes.

Mrs. Carolus-Peyton-Jones, Lord Tweedsmuir's niece, wore white organza embroidered with net roses and white flowers in her enchanting costume. Miss Spencer Smith, lady-in-waiting to Her Excellency, was in white satin embroidered with pearls over which she wore a pale green cape. Mrs. A. S. Redfern, of the Government House, wore a gold and silver gown made in a strikingly simple style.

DIPLOMATS' WIVES

The women of the diplomatic corps were equally thoughtful in their selection of dresses. Madame Raymond Bruggers, wife of the Minister of France, wore a deep blue taffeta velvet in line. Madame S. Kato, wife of the Minister of Japan, was in powder blue.

Mrs. Norman Armour, wife of the Minister of the United States, wore a gown of gold lace and Mrs. Silver-cruys-Farmen, sister of the Minister of Belgium, who was meeting many of the official set for the first time, wore a clever dress of black velvet.

Mrs. H. A. Bruce, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, who with her husband is staying at Government House until after the opening of Parliament, chose one of the most admired gowns, a picture dress of black taffeta, very bouffant, with which she wore a diamond chain.

Mrs. Walter E. Foster, wife of the Speaker of the Senate, appeared regal in silver lace. Mrs. Pierre Casgrain, wife of the Speaker of the House of Commons, was chic in ethereal black chiffon. The company numbered about 500.

Mrs. Winter, musician; Mrs. E. McCabe, R.S.N.G.; Mrs. M. Kendrew, L.S.N.G.; Mrs. M. Taylor, R.S.V.G.; Miss M. Davies, L.S.V.G.; Miss B. Johnston, I.O.; Brother F. McConnell, O.G. and Miss Effie Atkins, Junior P.N.G.

Past Noble Grand services were presented to Mrs. Bullen of Colfax and Miss Winter of Carne. Mrs. Bullen was presented by the Noble Grand of Colfax Lodge with a beautiful luncheon cloth in recognition of her services as Noble Grand of Colfax, and Mrs. Barr presented Miss Atkins with an umbrella on behalf of Carne Lodge for faithful services rendered as Noble Grand. Two visiting sisters were present from Saskatchewan: Mrs. Knightly, P.N.G. and Mrs. Maynard, both spoke briefly after being called upon by the Noble Grand presiding, Miss N. Lobban. Other speakers of the evening were Mrs. E. Deane, vice president of the Rebekah Assembly; Mrs. B. C. Mrs. E. A. Walker, assembly secretary; Mrs. J. Grant, P.P. of B.C.; Mrs. Swartzman, P.P. of Ontario; Mrs. A. Barr, D.D.P.; and Mrs. McKenzie, Noble Grand of Colfax.

After the meeting, the members adjourned to the dining hall where a banquet had been prepared by the social committee under the capable command of Miss A. Nathan. The tables were prettily decorated with pink and mauve chrysanthemums in silver baskets.

Miss McNeill and Mrs. P. E. George were appointed as nominating committee. Mrs. William Ellis was nominated for national councillor, and Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. E. O. Weston, and Mrs. J. L. Ford for provincial councillors.

The chapter expressed thanks to Hon. F. M. MacPherson, David Spencer Limited, the Kent Piano Company and P. E. George and Sons for prizes donated for the children's ball.

Horticultural W.A.—The W.A. to the Victoria Horticultural Society is holding another of its monthly card parties on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the Liberal Headquarters, corner of Government and Beatty. Both bridge and whist will be played. The usual prizes will be given and refreshments will be served by the social committee at the close.

Her hash has such delicious flavor they clamor for the recipe

TIME and time again she is asked what makes her hash so tasty, so full of flavor? Over and over again she tells her secret—"Add just a dash of Yorkshire Relish."

Just as our grandmothers grew herbs and roots which they used to flavor their cooking, so the modern home manager uses Yorkshire Relish to give mellow tastiness to her dishes. Use it in corned beef hash, meatloaf, stews, soups. It gives a flavor you cannot get with any other sauce.

It takes four years to make a bottle of Yorkshire Relish. Its flavor is matured from 20 carefully selected fruits, vegetables, herbs, spices, essences, measured and blended with test tube accuracy, steeped in cool water for four years to produce this mellow, piquant, flavorful sauce.

Yorkshire Relish does you good, too. Its aromatic herbs and spices stimulate the gastric juices and help digestion.

Try its taste before you cook

Try this and see how flavorful Yorkshire Relish is. Pour a few drops into a teaspoon, then stir it. What flavor! Hot, yet sweet, no other sauce can impart such delicious flavor to your cooking.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRID

VERBAL ROUTINE AIDS CHILD'S UNDERSTANDING

In building up the child's good habits, it is wise to couch our daily instructions in the same simple phrases. Words slip so glibly off our tongues that we forget how confused a child may become and thus be made not only helpless but misbehaving because he does not know what we expect of him.

When we are teaching the child to use his food utensils—we might do well to repeat over and over again the same phrases until the child connects our instructions and the desired conduct.

Let us put the spoon in baby's hand so that it is pointed conveniently toward the dish. Then by putting our hand over baby's we can guide it from dish to mouth while we say pleasantly, "Down in the dish, up to the mouth, down in the dish, up to the mouth," meanwhile illustrating with the appropriate gestures.

In a short time we should be able to omit the hand-holding and let the words alone act as the stimulus.

In establishing the child's nap and bed-time habits, we make the whole ceremony seem to be self-initiated and self-directed. If we begin by working out a chain of acts that will lead right into the bed. "Off with the shoes," we say briskly, "off with the suit (or dress), off with the undershirt, into the bathroom, into the nightgown, into the bed, under the cover, snap goes the light." etc.

To the child, it is like reading a familiar story. Not only does he know—and joyously anticipate—the whole sequence of events, but the words and directions become mutually comprehensible. The small child loves to show us that he knows what we want him to do, and he has a most satisfying way of living up to our expectations.

Mothers may have our letters on "Establishing Good Toilet Habits" for the usual self-addressed and 3-cent stamped envelope sent to Myrtle Meyer Eldrid care of the Your Baby and Mine department of this newspaper.

Tomorrow: Too many toys confuse child's emotions.

Prepare For Wedding to Duke

Hon. Lavinia Strutt To Change Faith After Marriage

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Jan. 14.—Hon. Lavinia Strutt, who in two weeks will be married to the Duke of Norfolk, England's leading Catholic layman, will not be received into the Roman Catholic Church prior to her wedding.

It was disclosed today. Miss Strutt is still under instruction by Father Talbot, who is related to the bridegroom's noble house. Father Talbot will also perform the marriage ceremony. This will not be "solemnized," the service being short, without nuptial mass and without choir. It is expected the bride will be taken into the church after returning from her honeymoon.

Two thousand guests have been invited to the wedding, which will take place at Brompton Oratory, one of the largest Catholic churches in London, on January 27.

Great preparations are also being made to celebrate the wedding in the fine old Sussex town of Arundel.

The duke, who is twenty-eight, is identified with the Coronation arrangements in his capacity as hereditary Earl Marshal. He is also premier peer of England. Miss Strutt is twenty, the only daughter of Lord Belper, who is a descendant of Jeddiah Strutt, a cotton spinner of Derby, who in the eighteenth century invented a machine for making ribbed stockings and thereby founded a family fortune in textiles.

Women's Parish Guild—The Women's Parish Guild of Christ Church Cathedral will hold their annual meeting on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, in the Memorial Hall. Annual reports will be presented and officers elected.

St. Mark's W.A.—St. Mark's W.A. held a largely attended meeting on Tuesday, the new president, Mrs. A. J. Farmer, in the chair. A committee was formed to make arrangements for the programme for the parish party on Friday, January 29, the proceeds to be used towards finishing up the payments on the vicarage. After a substantial sum was handed to the church wardens for expenses, a small balance was left in the auxiliary's account. The resignation of Mrs. C. A. Goodwin, who has acted as parish treasurer for over thirty years, was received with much regret and Mrs. Wilson was installed in her place. Mrs. Goodwin was appointed honorary vice-president. Miss Mary McMillan kindly offered to take charge of the senior class of the Junior W.A. which meets twice a month, with Mrs. T. H. Thorpe in charge of the whole group. Four new members were welcomed: Mesdames Tuson, James, Wood and Linford. After the meeting tea was served.

Girls Placed In Farm Jobs
National Employment Board Says 4,944 Found Places

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—Under the farm placement plan for single unemployed, 4,944 women and girls had been placed in farm positions from October 1 to January 11, Mrs. Mary M. Sutherland of Wells, B.C., only woman member of the National Employment Commission, reported yesterday.

During the same period 37,831 men had been placed on farms for the winter, receiving $7.50 a month per man, with another $5 going to the farmer to help pay for his board. Another 3,302 men had been placed in British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba under supplementary plans.

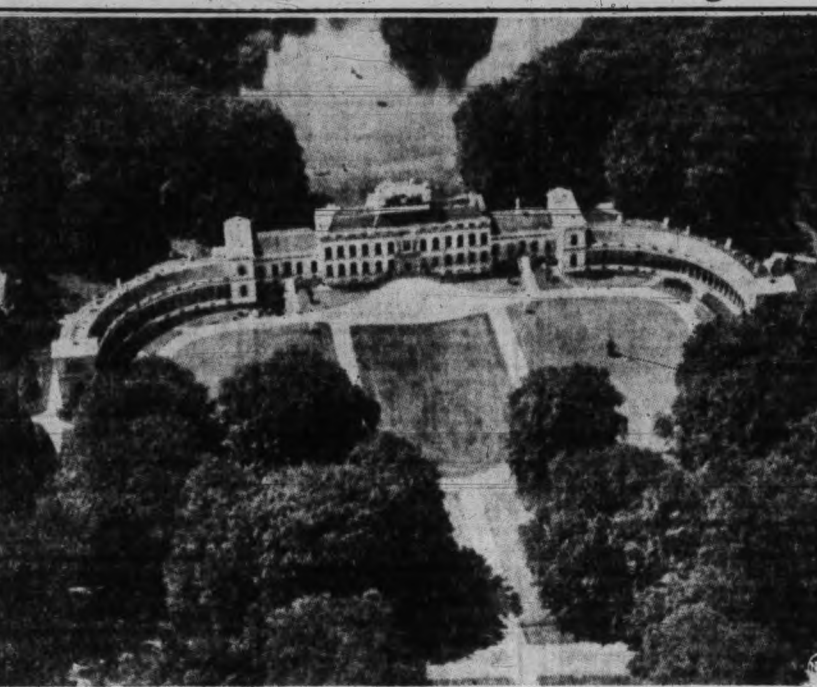

Mrs. Sutherland stated the commission had been more than satisfied with the results of the placement plan, since it was getting response from both unemployed and farmers. On the part of the farmers, there was a demand for 5,394 persons which was at present unfulfilled.

In British Columbia up to January 11, 198 men received placements.

New Home of Dutch Princess and Bridegroom

Princess Juliana of The Netherlands and her husband, Prince Bernhard zu Lippe-Biesterfeld, will set up housekeeping in the historic palace (above) of Soestdijk, modernized with a fund subscribed by the Dutch people, and given the royal newly-weds by the nation as a wedding present. The palace has been completely modernized and furnished, the expense being borne by a fund raised through popular subscription. Juliana has had 300,000 florins a year in her own right since she was eighteen. Following her wedding she will draw 400,000 florins ($217,000). Parliament recently granted Prince Bernhard 200,000 florins a year, effective upon his wedding day.

Bejeweled Women at Parliament's Opening

Lady Tweedsmuir in White and Gold Chiffon With Gold Lame Train Today; Gorgeous Materials in Women's Gowns Reflect Fashion's Trends

By MOLLIE MCGEE Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—This afternoon Parliament was opened with pomp, pageantry and ceremony which will differ in no great way from the openings that have preceded it. Yet, veteran officials say, on no such occasion since Confederation as there have been more wholehearted effort made to put the best foot forward, such interest for spectacular success, such an undercurrent of excitement and goodwill.

Last year, clothed in black, women of Canada's official and diplomatic circles attended the ceremony on Parliament Hill while a biting wind drove snow flurries over the icy roads and tore from the front of the building black and purple streamers, symbols of mourning for King George V. The Senate chamber seemed filled with sadness.

This year brilliantly clad women bedecked with jewels drove to attend the ceremonial opening of a short session that is expected to close in time for many of them to travel to the Coronation. And, as last year, their dress reflected the sorrow of the country for the death of its king, so this year the women's gowns, more gorgeous than any in the last decade, have borrowed in color and fabric from those planned for the empire festivities taking place in London this summer at the crowning of a new monarch.

LUSCIOUS MATERIALS
Gold and silver thread, rich brocades and heavy lustrous satins were the favorite materials in luscious qualities meant almost to "stand alone." With these are the filmy draping materials ideal for the simple lines reminiscent of graceful medieval costumes. The favored shades were those best offset by military uniforms or crimson velvet cloaks. White was popular, blue the predominant color, with soft pastel tints much to the fore.

Lady Tweedsmuir chose a white and gold embroidered chiffon gown for the opening ceremony and wore a long gold lame train lined with cream velvet. Her dress was popular, blue the predominant color, with soft pastel tints much to the fore.

Miss Beatrice Spencer-Smith, lady-in-waiting, wore a heavy satin patterned with gold, the voluminous skirt lengthening into a train.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE PARTY
Watching the proceedings from the seats in the balcony set aside for the government house party were Miss Carolyn Peyton-Jones, His Excellency's niece, in a white picture frock; Mrs. A. S. Bedford, wife of His Excellency's secretary, in blue-green with a train lined with silver. Other ladies of the household included in this group were F. L. C. Periera in powder blue face with a lace train and cream velvet failings and a revived and made in velvet lines with a fan-shaped train. As ornament she had a long pearl necklace and she also wore a mink wrap.

MINISTERS' WIVES
Mrs. T. A. Cregar, wife of the Minister of Mines and Natural Resources, was in white chiffon spun with silver thread forming a "brocade" design.

The low décolletage edged with a twist of piper's green velvet, ending in flowing twin trains.

Mrs. Ernest Lapointe, wife of the Minister of Justice, chose heavy black crepe, simply made with the smart accent of large white velvet peonies.

Mrs. C. A. Dunning, wife of the Minister of Finance, wore turquoise crepe embroidered in silver. Mrs. C. G. Power, wife of the Minister of Pensions and National Health, wore a purple Schiaparelli model in satin.

Mrs. J. L. Halsey, wife of the Minister of National Revenue, appeared in a gown of flowered net with amethyst and pearl jewelry. Mrs. J. E. Mitchell, wife of the Minister of Fisheries, wore a Schiaparelli model of gold crepe with graceful skirt flaring into twin trains.

Mrs. C. D. Howe, wife of the Minister of Transport, was in heavy French blue lace threaded in silver, the skirt lengthening into a short graceful train.

Mrs. James G. Gardiner, wife of the Minister of Agriculture, wore mauve net over mauve tulle, and Mrs. J. C. Gardiner, mother of Hon. J. G. Gardiner, wore a black velvet.

WOMEN SENATORS
The "working" women of Parliament and the Senate attended the opening in dresses such as they might wear on a working day. Senator Cairine Wilson was in an afternoon dress of heavy black crepe, morocain with deep-blue velvet and trimming. Senator Iva C. Fallis wore an afternoon dress of blackberry lace.

Mrs. George Black, Conservative member for Yukon territory, was in an afternoon ensemble of bottle green with netting and sleeves trimmed with real old lace.

Mrs. Geo. Miles Again Regent
Camouf Chapter I.O.E. met in the headquarters yesterday afternoon, with the regent, Mrs. George Miles, in the chair. The members took the oath of allegiance to King George VI. Letters of greetings and good wishes for the New Year were received from Mrs. W. Ellis, municipal regent, and from Mrs. Andrew Wright and Mrs. F. H. Mayhew, who are in California.

An interesting report of the Travelers' Aid of the Y.W.C.A. was read by the secretary, Mrs. J. Hebdon Gillespie, who was nominated as national councillor and Mrs. George Miles, Mrs. A. E. Hopkins and Mrs. A. H. C. Phipps as provincial councillors.

Mrs. George Miles was returned by acclamation as regent of the chapter. Mrs. D. W. Burnett (convenor), Mrs. R. Dufcan and Mrs. Thompson Kirby were appointed as a committee to receive nominations for new officers.

Tea was served at the close of the meeting, the hostesses being Mrs. Miles, Mrs. A. E. Hopkins and Mrs. C. Wrigglesworth.

Lovers Met First In Desert

Peake Pasha to Marry Scotch Girl Soon

(London Special Correspondence)

—A romance of the desert lies behind the forthcoming marriage in London of Peake Pasha, the officer commanding the Arab Legion and Director of Public Security in Transjordan, and Miss Elspeth Ritchie, of Roxburgh, Renfrewshire, Scotland.

The wedding will take place towards the end of January.

"We met a year ago in the desert," Miss Ritchie told a press representative, when describing how she first met Peake Pasha.

"I was spending a holiday in Transjordan with my sister who lives there. I was introduced to Peake Pasha in the desert town of Amman, where his headquarters are situated."

Peake Pasha, who is fifty, has spent more than half his life in the East. He received his commission in the Duke of Wellington's regiment in 1906 and served in India until 1913.

In that year he was transferred to the Egyptian army and served with the Camel Corps in the Sudan, taking part in the Durrat Expedition in 1916.

After a spell with the Royal Air Force at Salonika, he served with Lawrence of Arabia in the Hedjaz section of the Egyptian Expeditionary Force.

When Britain was given a mandate over Transjordan, Peake Pasha was put in charge of the administration. With his Arab Legion he soon converted this warring district into a peaceful and well-behaved community, and in doing so, became a legendary figure, second only to Lawrence himself.

In 1929, when in the desert near the Syrian border, he and his chauffeur were surrounded by 300 armed Bedouins who threatened to kill him. One of them, pressing a rifle against Peake Pasha's chest, shouted, "I'll kill you."

Immediately the Pasha replied, "I hope you will, and quickly." The coolness of the reply first astounded the Bedouins who then laughed and the tension was relieved. Soon after this, a friendly sheikh arrived on the scene and saw that Peake Pasha was not subjected to further molestation.

The HOLIDAY MYSTERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The guests of the Christmas party at "Thunder Mesa," the de Forest hacienda in New Mexico, has a tragic ending when PEARL SAM DE FOREST, sister of three brothers, is found dead with a knife in her throat.

Each of the de Forest brothers has the first name "Pearl". As a family they cling to traditions, seldom see outsiders. PEARL JOHN is the youngest, PEARL PIERRE next. Others at the house are: TANTE JOSEPHINE, old and an invalid; BETTY WEICH, a young companion; SAMOY VASQUEZ, and ANGELIQUE, BETTY's friend. At the party, PROFESSOR SHAW, archeologist, and BOB GRAM, tire salesman stopping at the hacienda while his car is being repaired.

The body of Pearl Sam, placed in the house chapel, has disappeared. Later Hamen and Angeline leave the house. Next morning Pearl Pierre sent for. He is found, lifeless, below a rocky ledge, the same knife that killed his brother, in his throat.

Pearl John announces he is going to destroy the knife, but when he goes to get it, the knife has disappeared. Pearl John accuses the Indian servant, BROGLEN, of murdering the Indian. Tante Josephine defends the Indian. Next morning she, too, is dead.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII

Stunned by the news of Tante Josephine's death, and fully aroused now to the tragedy about them, the household at Thunder Mesa assembled. Outside the blizzard swept across the windy space, holding dead and alive, alike, prisoners in its icy clutch.

Had Tante Josephine's rage burned out her life or was there some other reason for her death? This thought was foremost in the minds of all. Betty had not left the old lady the night before until Tante Josephine had seemed to be sleeping quietly. There was nothing new to indicate that she had died from any but natural causes. Yet the awful doubt remained.

About 10 o'clock the two men who had started down the canyon the day before came staggering back to the hacienda, half-frozen and saying that the road was impassable. They had been unable to get through. All night they had fought the storm and were glad to have escaped with their lives.

"The Indian," Pearl John remarked, "did not bring any report on the road."

"The Indian was not at his post at the top of the trail," the men told him. "He does not know."

This proved to be the case, when an investigation was made. Broken Shield had vanished as completely as had his tribal ancestors. Had he learned of his benefactress' death, and realizing his position was no longer secure, taken himself off? Or was the Indian hiding somewhere on the mesa, perhaps with the deadly obsidian knife in his possession, ready to wreak vengeance on some supposed slayer of the old lady whose devoted slave he had been? The members of the group who were left, discussed this as they gathered in the living room, as though for mutual protection. Even de Forest's violent attitude of the day before seemed to have exhausted itself.

After lunch Professor Shaw announced that he was going to do some studying, and, since his host did not offer any objection, he went to his room and closed the door. Methodically he unlocked a desk and took out a small black notebook. This he put into his pocket, along with a tape measure rolled into a round metal holder. After waiting a moment he walked to the door.

The corridor outside was empty, and a low hum of conversation came from the living room. The professor stepped out into the corridor and shut the door for soundlessly behind him. Then he made his way down the hall until he was opposite the door with the lion's head knocker.

Looking carefully about, he took a key from his pocket and slipped it into the lock. In a minute the door opened and he was standing at the top of a long flight of adobe steps. He closed the door carefully and, turning on a small pocket flashlight, went slowly down into the darkness below.

It was a very long stairway, as he had expected it would be. The measurements he had made from the outside of the house had told him that the hacienda was built on more than a trace of the old Indian pueblo. There were many feet left of the ancient structure, so the basement of the house was probably much deeper than it would have been if its walls had been of modern construction.

At last he stood in what appeared to be an ordinary storage room. A great many boxes and barrels were arranged in neat piles around three sides, leaving one wall clear.

The professor eyed this vacant space with some interest, but there seemed to be nothing unusual about it. He ran his hand over the surface and got a painful splinter in one finger for his curiosity. Then he turned, his attention to the floor, tapping it here and there. Apparently it, too, was of solid material with nothing unusual in its construction. He took out the notebook, consulting its pages with a puzzled frown on his thin face. Could he have been mistaken again? He had thought there was no possibility of that, after the weeks he had put in checking and mapping the outlines of the old pueblo.

He had traced the entire structure so that he could reconstruct it in his notebook, much as it must have stood out against the skyline above the mesa. An imposing ancient well-built communal house it must have been, he had decided; for the adobe was of fine quality, evidently the work of master builders.

But Professor Shaw did not have time to stand mooning over bygone days. The cellar had further significance for him and the hours were all too short in which to prove anything of which he had been so sure. Once more he went over as much of the room as he could without moving anything, examining every inch of the walls and floor. The search was unrewarded.

He paused before that blank space and looked at it thoughtfully. Was there any reason why three sides of the room should be filled and nothing placed against that particular wall? Throwing the yellow beam of his light against its edges, he peered at the wall closely, but so far as he could see the parts fitted together so closely it was apparent that it had never been moved. Carefully he tapped the wall, listening intently for evidence of a hollow beyond.

Just as he was about to give up he detected a difference in the sound, and eagerly he compared its location with the notes in his book. He was right, then, after all. There was a hollow space behind that wall, and he knew it was there.

There had been a reason for keeping the wall clear. Evidently the present owners of the house knew of that other chamber and possibly had some way of getting into it. Why were they so secretive? What was in that mysterious place? The professor turned his attention again to the floor in front of the wall, tapping it directly opposite the place in the wall that had had a different sound. So there was a space under the floor, level, too. Well, he had expected that.

All the pueblos had their kivas or places for religious ceremonies below the level of the living quarters. Fortunately, the present-day Pueblo Indians still clung to their ancient customs of building to that it was not difficult to reconstruct the life of their ancestors.

The professor had found evidences that they still made concessions to the old religion, in case the white man's God failed them—as in time of drought, for instance. It was almost certain, therefore, that the old kiva was beneath the spot where he now stood, and more than probable that the de Forest family knew about this, too. He was nearing the end of his quest. Perhaps within his hands would lie the solution of all the strange happenings on the mesa.

Just how he would use this knowledge, if he did get it, the professor had not decided. Of one thing he was certain. He would make young de Forest swallow every one of the insinuations he had cast at him. Already he could picture the other man's feelings when he, the despised professor of archeology, took things into his own hands and became the one to dictate. Cheered by this prospect, Professor Shaw set to work again with his tape, drawing out a length of it to see the size of the possible doorway beyond, so that he could find the entrance to the place.

So engrossed was he in this investigation that he did not hear a slight movement behind him, nor was he conscious that other eyes than his were watching his tapeline, the metal-tipped end of which slithered across the floor with a faint rasping sound. At last, satisfied by the results, the professor made rapid calculations in his notebook, then propped the electric torch on the floor, to that the beam of light fell directly on the space in the wall where he had been working. He was pressing against the wall with his shoulder when someone leaped up behind him, blotting out consciousness. The last thing the professor remembered was the tightening of a tapeline around his bare throat.

Dominoes Set Eyes On Another B.C. Basketball Championship

THE SPORTS MIRROR

By PETE SALLAWAY

BASKETBALL fans can look forward to another struggle this season between the Dominoes and the classy Wheeler Osgood outfit from Tacoma. The cash customers left the High School gym talking to themselves after last Saturday's titanic battle which saw the locals edge out a one-point victory on Carl Coates' basket in the final second of play. For excitement and thrills, the engagement rivaled any other local exhibition in years and kept the fans on their toes in a nerve-tangling condition from start to finish.

It appears that the Tacoma players, all of whom boast high reputations in Pacific Northwest basketball circles, are not satisfied with the Dominoes as the better club, and want another crack at Dave Nicol's charges. The Washington performers were also dissatisfied with the refereeing and the work of the other officials last Saturday. So, just to make the invaders feel at home, president Jack Taylor of the local league will book them for another game and extend them the privilege of bringing along their own referee, scorer and timekeeper. "We are not afraid of that club and can beat them with their own officials," Taylor said today.

When Jack Hobbs, outstanding star of post-war cricket in England, announced his retirement from first-class competition nearly two years ago, the knowledge that the great international player would be seen no more on famous pitches of the Old Country, Australia and South Africa came as a shock to followers of the ancient game.

A few weeks ago, Kent decided not to re-engage "Titch" Freeman, famous bowler and hero of "Hop County" crowds for many years. Following suit, Hampshire County announced recently that Philip Mead, another veteran international player, would not be retained. His departure means that Frank Woolley, another Kent professional, alone remains of the "Old Brigade."

Hobbs, most brilliant of the quartette, was fifty-three when he cried "quite" and Freeman forty-seven. Mead, big-framed left-hander, will be fifty in March while Woolley is a few months younger.

One of cricket's greatest charms is the interest taken by its supporters in the veterans of the game and Mead's appearances year after year for Hampshire had been taken for granted. For thirty years the "robot of first-class cricket," as he has been called, was the mainstay of Hampshire's batting just as "Titch" Freeman bore the burden of Kent's bowling staff.

Mead first played for the southern county against Australia at Southampton in 1905. He has since rendered England valuable service in test matches against Australia and South Africa both at home and abroad. Altogether he has hit 153 centuries in first-class cricket and scored more than 55,000 runs.

In recognition of his services, the (Turn to Page 10, Col. 4)

Defeat Capitols Again to Capture Victoria Honors

Score Sixth Straight Victory in Local Schedule By 38 to 25

Roy Taylor Is Scoring Leader

With the local senior A men's basketball championship safely tucked away the Victoria Dominoes today cleared decks in preparation for the provincial play-offs and national honors. Marking up their sixth successive victory over the Capitols at the High School gym last night, 38 to 25, the Dominoes took the city title. The Victoria clubs were scheduled to play a ten-game schedule, but whether or not it will be completed is doubtful. President Jack Taylor of the Victoria and District League would issue no statement today. Although they are city and island champions and have won a berth in the provincial final against the mainland winners, the best three-out-of-five game B.C. championship will not open until the middle of March. However, the Dominoes will be kept in condition with games against classy outside outfits.

ARE BETTER CLUB

There was little doubt about the winner last night after the first five minutes. The Dominoes, but on the pressure, took an early lead and were never headed. In the last ten minutes of the final half the Capitols tried gamely to close the gap and their offensive looked better than at any other time during the evening. Scoring honors for the evening went to Roy Taylor, Dominoes, with eleven points. Ollie Goldsmith, Capitols, was runner-up with eight, while Axel Kinnear and Art Chapman, both of the Dominoes, got six apiece.

The Capitols had twelve fouls called against them and the Dominoes seven. Ralph Shepherd, Capitols, was forced out of the game on personals with a minute and a half to play.

Play opened slowly, with neither team being able to click on shots. The Capitols took a 2 to 1 lead, but Art Chapman made it 3 to 2, and from that point on the Dominoes were on the right end of the score. At the six-minute mark it was 8 to 2, and with fifteen minutes gone the champions were out in front 16 to 4.

The scoreboard at half-time read Dominoes 19, Capitols 6. The Capitols' points in this half were split between two men, Harold McLean with two baskets and Alex McKeachie with a pair of free shots.

In the second half the Dominoes carried the offensive in the early stages and after building up a 33 to 13 lead took matters easy. Scoring for the checkered crew was well divided, with all members of the club contributing points. As the game drew to a close the Capitols clicked (Turn to Page 10, Col. 5)

PROVINCE AND VARSITY WIN

Defeat Adanacs and Munroes, Respectively, in Mainland Basketball

New Westminster, Jan. 14.—The top ranking Province quintette increased their lead in the Inter-city Basketball League last night with a 36 to 19 victory over New Westminster Adanacs here.

Tony Osborne led the terminal city cagers with ten points, while two teammates, John Purves and Bumsted counted nine and eight, respectively.

Pete Meehan, with seven points, was high scorer for the Adanacs, crippled by the loss of several players touring the interior with an all-star New Westminster squad.

Vancouver, Jan. 14.—University of British Columbia Thunderbirds continued their drive to take over first place in the Inter-city Basketball League last night as they edged through in the last minutes of a league battle to a 47 to 41 victory over Munroes.

The Varsity grabbed the lead a few minutes from the start but could never pull safely away from the fighting Munro squad, and half-time found them on the long end of a 28 to 20 count.

Near the finish a Munroe rally carried them to within a few points of tying the score but a concerted drive by the Thunderbirds, led by Matthiessen, gave them their margin of victory.

Matthiessen nicked eight points for Thunderbirds, while Bains and Bagley each counted twelve points for Munroes.

YAROSZ TAKES TOUGH SCRAP

Former Middleweight Champion Whips Solly Krieger at New York

New York, Jan. 14.—Teddy Yarosz, former middleweight champion of the world, took a big step along the comeback trail last night with a stirring ten-round victory over Solly Krieger, Brooklyn. Yarosz weighed 159 and Krieger 160 pounds.

By turning back the conqueror of Harry Basmano, the clever Yarosz placed himself in a spot to challenge the winner of the Freddie Steele-Eddie (Babe) Risko championship fight in Madison Square Garden next month. Steele and Risko agreed to terms yesterday.

Last night's bout in the New York Hippodrome attracted 5,000 fans, who paid $2.25.

The deck turned out to be a bruising battle between a superb boxer and a good rugged puncher, with the

GARFIELD OFFICES

With his ninth consecutive term as United States Representative scheduled to close on March 4, 1881, James A. Garfield was elected United States Senator by the Ohio State legislature. His term in this office was to start on the same date that his position as Representative was to close. On June 8, 1880, Garfield was nominated for the Presidency by the Republican party and won the ensuing election on November 4 of the same year.

Thus, strange as it seems, for the following four days Garfield simultaneously held political honors as U.S. Representative, U. S. Senator-Elect, and U. S. President-Elect. On November 8 he resigned his seat in the House of Representatives and on December 23 he declined his Senatorship.

THE STRANGEST PUNT

Players have kicked footballs for almost incredible distances. Others have developed amazing accuracy in putting them between goal posts. So far as is known, however, no one has ever duplicated the strange record recently established by Dale Youngren, Doiland High school sophomore. All account of the feat, as described by G. S. Hubbard, athletic director of the school, follows:

"Youngren and Coats, my punters, were practicing sharpshooting for the coffin corner, and Woodring was catching the punts. Coats punted one wild, out of bounds, into a stubble field bordering the gridiron. When Woodring ran to recover the ball he flushed three pheasants. The birds started to fly across the football field just as Youngren kicked. One hen flew into the ball, breaking her neck and falling to the ground."

DAMAGES

On the alleged grounds that his eleven-year-old son had twice been the victim of false arrest, Douglas Van Horn, a Seattle accountant, recently filed a complaint in a Federal court wherein he demanded twenty million dollars in damages for himself. He asked a like amount for his son.

Closing Dates For Shuttle Entries

At a meeting of the executive of the Lower Vancouver Island Badminton League held recently, it was decided the dates for the closing of entries for the senior and junior knockout tournaments would be February 13 and 20, respectively. The actual playing dates will be decided upon later.

A separate knock-out tournament will be held for the fourth and fifth divisions for which a suitable trophy will be donated by the Lower Island League. Matches in these divisions will be played under the same conditions as league matches of the fourth and fifth divisions.

Detroit-Rangers Battle For Lead

OAKLAND WINS HOCKEY CLASH

Defeats Seattle 2 to 1 in Coast League; D. Gilhooly Fined $15

Seattle, Jan. 14.—Seattle's Sea Hawks, early season Pacific Coast Hockey League leaders, dwelt alone in the cellar today without the comforting presence of their erstwhile companions, the Oakland Clippers.

Bags of peanuts were tossed on the ice here last night while the Clippers downed the Hawks, 2 to 1, and Dave Gilhooly, big Seattle defender, man, rested on the bench and considered a $15 fine imposed by Referee Pete Sande.

Oakland scored in the first period when Ernie Kenny slapped the puck into the goal after taking it from Bill Hutton. Seattle came back on a combination from Cameron Proudlock to Sammy McAdam to Hal Tabor.

The second period was scoreless. With the peanuts cleared away, McCarty scored on a pass from Hutton.

Teams follow:
Oakland: Trinning, Kenny, Houbrey, King, Moffatt, Webster, Subo, Hutton, Holmes, McCarty, Picketts, Seattle: Venne, Gilhooly, Holway; Downie, Newman, Whittles, Suss; Mullen, McAdam, Proudlock, Tabor.

First period—1, Oakland, Kenny from Hutton, 10:28; 2, Seattle, Tabor for McAdam, Proudlock, 13:15.

Penalties: King, Holway, Gilhooly, Downie.

Second period—Scoring, none. Penalties: Webster, Gilhooly, two minus plus match penalty and $15 fine.

Third period—3, Oakland, McCarty (Hutton), 14:48.

Penalties: None.

OAKLAND OPEN GOLF TO START

Leading United States Professionals Seek $5,000 in Prize Money

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 14.—Golf's professional legions gathered here today for final practice preparatory to the start tomorrow of the 72-hole medal play $5,000 Oakland open tournament.

Harry Cooper, Chicago, winner of the recent Los Angeles open, headed the play-for-pay clan and on the basis of his great performance in the south, became the pre-tournament favorite.

A sprinkling of outstanding amateurs of this section rounded out an entry list of some 175 players.

V.A.C. Meeting Called Tonight

The monthly meeting of the Victoria Athletic Club will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in The Colonist's board room. President Jack MacKenzie will occupy the chair. All members are requested to turn out.

Two Leading Clubs in American Section of National Hockey League Clash Tonight; Chicago Black Hawks Visit Montreal Maroons

Chicago Black Hawks were in Montreal today all excited at the prospect of running their winning streak to three or four games and moving out of the sub-cellar to a spot where they could make a fight of it with Boston Bruins.

Hawks are celebrating a two-game win streak, something they have enjoyed only once before this season. In Bruins' idleness until Sunday they see an opportunity of cutting down the Boston lead to three points.

But Montreal Maroons are their first obstacle. Hawks meet Tommy Gorman's team tonight and think if they can get around the Montrealers the Toronto Maple Leafs should be easy for them Saturday.

The only other game scheduled for tonight is a battle between the American section leading Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers who trail them by only two points. The Patrickmen will make their effort to overhaul the world champions at Madison Square Garden.

AMERKS LOSE OLIVER

The idle New York Americans have received more bad news. Harry Oliver, veteran right winger who has been in a Montreal hospital for some time, has undergone an operation and may be out of the game for the rest of the season.

His illness started with influenza and then it was found necessary to perform a mastoid operation. Meanwhile Roy Worters, their goalie, is still in New York, being built up for and abdominal operation made necessary by a hockey injury.

Toronto Leafs have recalled Art Jackson, brother of left-winger Harvey, from Syracuse Stars again. Jackson happened to be in Toronto to attend a wedding when Conny Smythe looked over statistics showing Jackson leads the International-American League in scoring. He promptly told him to stay over and play against Chicago Hawks Saturday night.

Grimm Signs His Chicago Contract

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Charles John Grimm yesterday signed a contract to boss Chicago Cubs again in 1937, and immediately went to work on some good and bad news for his hired men. Grimm's signing took an item out of the baseball rumor market—a rumor that the genial gentleman farmer would be replaced, as a result of the Cubs' failure to retain the National League title last season.

Hartford, Conn.—George Clark, 227, Scotland, defeated Irish Jack Donovan, 220, Boston (straight falls). Miami—Everett Marshall, 221, La Junta, Colo., defeated Johnny Plummer, 228, Tampa, Fla. (full Nelson 11:19).

SOME PLAIN AND FANCY HORSE SENSE DISPLAYED AS THOROUGHBREDS WORK OUT AT SANTA ANITA

Up at the crack of dawn, C. V. Whitney's Fall Oak takes a morning spin with only the clockers and a few stable hands to watch the performance.

Nothing like a drink to cool a runner off after breezing, says White Hot.

Merry Maker inquisitively turns his head as a photographer catches him having his ankles cooled to prevent fever and swelling after a workout.

King Cicero bosses the job as Cliff Scott, stable hand, cleans his halter.

School doesn't exactly appeal to Star Scout, but any insubordinating thoroughbred which cuts up at the post must attend classes at Santa Anita.

BOSTON CLUB WILL BOLSTER

New York, Jan. 14.—Tom Yawkey, who has $3,500,000 invested in the sixth place Boston Red Sox, listened yesterday to Manager Joe Cronin's plans for making the baseball investment good.

Joe recommended two players, two line-up changes, and lots of patience; and Yawkey, the happiest sixth place club owner in the business, agreed to everything.

Joe wants either Julius Fellers of the St. Louis Browns, or Joe Vosmik of the Cleveland Indians. He also wants to change Pinky Higgins from third to second base, and make room for a couple of youngsters in the outfield, but, as Yawkey pointed out, Fellers and Vosmik are not for sale.

Yawkey took time out to squelch rumors that he's sold out on Cronin. "I think the purchase of Cronin is the best deal I've made," he said. "He's one of the greatest guys I ever saw."

Baseball men believe Red Sox have picked up three of the finest players produced in the minors last year. They are outfielders Fabian Gast, Minneapolis, and Buster Mills, Rochester, and second baseman Bobby Doerr, San Diego.

"A great deal of the success of our club depends on whether these three come through," Cronin said. "Rog Cramer is sure of a place in the outfield, but he's the only one."

Cronin, estimating the Red Sox would have a hard-hitting infield and a better pitching staff, "Johnny Marcum is the real question among the pitchers," Joe said. "If he comes through, we should be hard to beat."

Chocolate Scores Another Knockout

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 14.—Kid Chocolate advanced another step in his comeback campaign last night, scoring a fifth-round technical knockout over Johnny Erickson, New York. The former world featherweight champion weighed 130½ and Erickson 132.

A badly cut left eye caused one of Erickson's handlers to toss in the towel after 2 minutes and 15 seconds had elapsed in the fifth frame of the scheduled ten-round feature bout.

Chocolate was a fine battle, and was outboxing the New York Swede by a convincing margin when the bout was abruptly terminated.

Until the injury, Erickson put up a stubborn battle.

Must Register For Health Benefits

Statutory deductions of 2 per cent from the cheques of wage-earners for health insurance are compulsory, starting March 1, but no benefits can be granted unless the employee is registered with the commission. Alton Peebles, chairman, declared today in announcing the commission's desire to have all eligible persons registered.

"Health insurance," the chairman said, "will provide complete medical care, hospitalization, maternity care, X-ray and laboratory services for all who are employed in British Columbia at a salary or wage of $1,800 a year or less, and who are registered under the Health Insurance Act."

Any worker who neglects to register simply deprives himself of the benefits while he is still making his contribution, he said.

"The Health Insurance Act," said the chairman, "is intended to operate for the benefit of the citizens to ensure them freedom from the spectre of worry over illness and to provide that assurance which in itself is the greater part of continued good health. Freedom from financial worry is one of the greatest curative agents."

The following table, compiled from information given by Mr. Peebles, indicates at a glance the working of the health insurance scheme:

ASSESSMENTS	BENEFITS
Who pays—All employed persons earning $1,800 a year and less, except agricultural workers, domestic servants, Christian Scientists, certain part-time and seasonal workers and those already in satisfactory private industrial medical service plans.	Who gets them—A wage-earner who has contributed for four weeks to the health insurance fund, and his dependents who are registered. Dependents may include his entire family, except those under twenty-one who are no longer dependent, and those over twenty-one unless he or she is incapacitated.
What they pay—Employee pays 2 per cent of salary, starting at a minimum of 35 cents a week, up to a maximum of 70 cents.	How they are obtained—An employee must first register with the commission and pay contributions. When sickness occurs he goes in the ordinary way to his doctor.
Employer pays 1 per cent of each employee's salary, starting at 20 cents a week up to a maximum of 35 cents.	What do benefits consist of:
Examples—Salary $15 a week: employer pays 35 cents, employee 20 cents.	1. Necessary medical services of any doctor a man wants.
Salary $25 a week: employer pays 50 cents, employee 25 cents.	2. Pre-natal and maternity care for maternity cases.
Salary $34 a week: employer pays 68 cents, employee 34 cents.	3. Surgical attention for operations.
	4. Hospital ward care up to ten weeks for any one sickness.
	5. Fifty per cent of the cost of necessary drugs, medicines and dressings.
	6. X-ray and laboratory services and aids in diagnosis.

MILD WEATHER IS EXPECTED

Snowfall Is Only Light and Sun Comes Out as Prairies Feel Icy Blasts

There will not be much change in the weather until tomorrow, and another light fall of snow may be expected during the evening, it was intimated this morning by W. A. Thorn, chief weatherman at the Connales Hill observatory.

Because there was not much wind, the snowfall in Victoria overnight reached only a quarter of an inch. The snow commenced early this morning and fell heaviest between 9 o'clock, when business people were on their way to offices and stores in the city.

Up-land points had more snow than Victoria, Duncan and Nanaimo reporting about an inch. Snow came down in big flakes in the hills back of the Malahat and driving over the highways there yesterday evening was difficult.

The minimum temperature this morning was thirty. At noon it had risen to thirty-five degrees.

Low temperatures may be expected again tonight, Mr. Thorn said, and tomorrow there would be a turn for gradually milder weather.

Heavy rains in eastern and central Ontario brought about flood conditions at Port Hope, where the Garapara River overflowed its banks.

Downed residences and business houses were flooded. Ray Croft was carried downstream by the current when he slipped into the stream. Rescuers dragged him to safety.

Cold honors across the prairies went to Athabasca, northern Alberta, where a minus sixty-four was recorded. Saskatchewan posted a forty-below reading and Edmonton was close behind with thirty-six. Regina recorded thirty-five below.

Many highways in central Manitoba were reported impassable from yesterday's blizzard.

After paying a short visit to Victoria on his first western inspection trip of the year, Sir James MacBrien, head of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, left last night for Vancouver.

A meeting of the Esquimalt C.C.F. Club will be held in St. Paul's Parish Hall this evening at 8 o'clock. Business will be discussed and a date set for election of officers for 1937.

Manslaughter Appeal Proceeding Before B.C. Appeal Court

The case for the respondent, the Crown, was expected to start this afternoon in the appeal of Mrs. Jean McIntosh against six years' imprisonment on a manslaughter conviction as the case continued before the B.C. Court of Appeal here.

A Duncan Crox, counsel for the appellant, was dealing with his last point in the appeal from conviction when the court adjourned for lunch today.

Counsel for the appellant withdrew his objections to introduction of the court stenographer in the trial court, a point he had made late yesterday when the hearing was resumed this morning.

His claims this morning centred around alleged error on the part of the trial judge in giving the jury the impression it was forced to accept a "dying declaration" by Mrs. Phyllis Velocette, who accused six weeks after she had been admitted to the Vancouver General Hospital after alleged abortion efforts on her by Mrs. McIntosh.

The trial judge had further failed to instruct the jury on the weight to be placed on the declaration, and had excluded evidence which might have shown the state of mind of the patient when she signed that declaration, he submitted. The declaration was taken two days after the patient had been admitted to the hospital.

Mr. Crox further held error existed in the trial judge's charge to the jury in which the judge had set forth that the jury need not convict on murder if it thought a verdict of manslaughter should be brought in. That charge, counsel said, eliminated possibility of acquittal.

Just before adjournment Mr. Crox returned to a discussion of evidence to the effect the patient had attempted abortion on herself in addition to the alleged efforts made by Mrs. McIntosh.

He sketched medical evidence to show that Mrs. Velocette died as a result of a condition which might have been brought on by a number of causes other than Mrs. McIntosh's alleged attempts at abortion.

In addition to selections by the Shrine Band the programme will include vocal selections by Miss Sheila Conway, banjo numbers by Mr. Pittman, dancing displays by pupils of the Russian Ballet School of Dancing and several acts of magic by William Harkness, "Canada's Houdini."

Possible amendment of the Streets Traffic and Regulations, by-law, to alter the minimum fare charged by taxi drivers to customers touring the city between the arrival and departure of boats here, was suggested today by Mayor Andrew McGavin.

He had been approached, the mayor said, by certain drivers who told him the regulations greatly decreased the number of trips they made, particularly for fares coming from the Seattle boat and leaving town an hour later for Vancouver.

The present ruling called for the charge of $1 for sightseeing rides in taxis. People would not pay that for short rides, but would be willing to pay 50 cents, the taxi men said.

In order to assist them the revision of the by-law will be considered.

B.C. SURVEYORS NAME LEADERS

H. McL. Elliott, Vancouver, Elected President at Annual Meeting

H. McL. Elliott, Vancouver, was elected president at the opening session of the Corporation of British Columbia Land Surveyors' annual meeting this morning in the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Elliott succeeded O. B. N. Wilkie, who opened the meeting.

Other officers elected were: Vice-president, G. K. Burnett, New Westminster; secretary-treasurer, A. S. G. Munger, Victoria; ex-officio, Survey-General, P. C. Green, Victoria; board, A. J. Campbell, Victoria; John Davidson, Vancouver; W. G. McElhanney, Vancouver; A. D. Noakes, Victoria; P. C. Underhill, Vancouver.

In his retiring address, Mr. Wilkie stressed the increasing necessity of official recognition of the importance of old landmarks which the ravages of time were fast obliterating. He said the board had been pressing for some action in the matter of renewing such old corners with an ultimate view to a scheme of protection and maintenance. The speaker also drew attention to the necessity of proper road surveys in the interests of adjacent owners.

During the year, he said, the deaths of three active members had occurred and of three others who had at one time been active members. He particularly referred to the late Thomas Sinclair Gore, a former secretary-treasurer and president of the corporation. "Mr. Gore died less than a week ago at the age of eighty-five. There is no need to recall his many years of close connection with the affairs of our corporation. His gentlemanly manner and upright position under all circumstances will long remain a memory with the great number of our members who personally knew him," said Mr. Wilkie in tribute to the late member.

The annual dinner of the corporation will be held at the Pacific Club this evening when forty surveyors will be present and guests will include representatives of the various government departments and kindred professions.

B.C. DESIRES OWN HEARING

As reports from Ottawa this week indicated the federal government would name a commission to investigate a new financial set-up for the western provinces, it was indicated here that British Columbia would press for a separate hearing on its long-standing "better terms" claim.

While the cabinet declined to make any formal comment, it was learned the provincial government will insist upon keeping the British Columbia argument distinct from the general hearing. According to the last brief on the subject presented to Ottawa, the British Columbia claim goes back many years and is not purely an emergent condition arising out of the depression. This has already been recognized. It is said, by the Bennett government's action in voting $750,000 annual interest subsidy until the question is settled by commission.

A commission to hear the British Columbia arguments has already been promised, apart altogether from the general review proposed in Ottawa, it was pointed out here.

Church Makes Fine Progress

The annual meeting of the congregation of Oak Bay United Church was held Tuesday evening in the church parlors.

During 1936 forty-six new members were welcomed into its fellowship, and all departments of the church were announced as well staffed. Reports from ten organizations, presented by their secretaries and unanimously approved, revealed substantial progress and interest, namely: The Sunday school, choir, Obysa Club, C.G.I.T., Woman's Association, Woman's Missionary Society Auxiliary, Athena Club, Board of Stewards, Session, Quarterly Official Board, the pastor and treasurer of the church.

Financially, the year revealed an increase in total giving over 1935 of more than $300, and a considerable balance on hand.

Reporting on his four-year pastorate, Dr. Switzer pointed out 176 new members had been added to the church during that time, and the year 1936 showed an increase in giving over 1935 of $770.

The following stewards were elected for a three-year term: Mrs. C. Junget, Mrs. A. J. Gerry, N. R. Stewart, W. E. Cook, C. A. Gibbard, W. G. Thorbery.

A letter appealing for the support of the church was read during 1937 from the moderator, Rev. Dr. Peter Bryce, was read and approved.

Great Orchestra

Will Be Heard

A dozen big time radio entertainers in addition to a strong line-up of screen and stage talent has been assembled by Paramount to make "The Big Broadcast of 1937," which begins tomorrow at the Atlas Theatre, the most lavish production of its kind.

With Jack Benny, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Benny Goodman and his Swing Orchestra, and Leopold Stokowski and his Symphony Orchestra heading the list of radio headliners, and Shirley Ross, Ray Milland, Frank Forest, Eleanor Whitney representing Hollywood, "The Big Broadcast of 1937" is an all-star attraction whose individual performers have following running into the millions.

London, in 1807, was the first city to light its streets by gas, and ten years later, Baltimore was the first city in this country to adopt gas street lights.

Change Would Save $1,800

Saanich ratepayers would benefit by an annual saving of $1,800 in police administration if the provincial police took over the municipal work, Councillor A. G. Lambriek, candidate for police commission, told a meeting of Saanich Ward Two ratepayers in Tolmie School yesterday evening.

Dealing with the police plebiscite on which the people will vote next week, Councillor Lambriek said if the plebiscite favoured the municipal force and he were elected he would move for reorganization of the department's personnel.

Councillor E. C. Warren also addressed the meeting, reviewing ward work during the year and other matters generally related to ward activities. The meeting unanimously passed a resolution endorsing Councillor Warren as the ward representative.

Trustee William Toms, candidate for re-election, also spoke.

Stolen Autos Quickly Found

Two Victoria car owners this morning owed return of their stolen automobiles to the speedy work of city police yesterday evening.

At 10:50 o'clock Oscar Guelpe, 2540 Fernwood Road, reported his car stolen from its parking place on Yates Street, between Blanchard and Quadra Streets. At 11:40 o'clock it was found by Sgt. A. H. Bishop and Constable J. Blackstock at Yates and Cook Streets.

H. Gledhill, 1611 Pembroke Street, reported his car stolen from outside the Olympic Bowling Alley at 11:25 o'clock, and at 1:30 o'clock this morning it was found by Constable Blackstock and A. Nichol on Milford Street.

Krupps Are To Pay Dividend

Associated Press

Berlin, Jan. 14.—Reflecting the increase in the Reich's armaments, Krupp's steel works yesterday declared a dividend of 4 per cent, the first in fourteen years.

He said, when he arrived from Europe on the liner Aquitania with his wife, the former Nina Melvank.

"Not once since he died has he advised me wrongly," Doyle said.

Selected Issues Advance In Active Wall St. Trading

New York, Jan. 14.—Motors, farm implements and specialties surged forward one to around five points in today's stock market, but many other issues backed away from the rally. There was an assortment of new recovery peaks established on the move which was initiated by renewed hopes the conference between General Motors officials and union representatives would bring a quick settlement of the strike.

Extremely fast trading flurries punctuated the session, but there were slow intervals. Transfers approximated 3,000,000 shares.

Coppers had a brief lively moment when one producer boosted the domestic price of the red metal 1/2 cent to 67 1/2 cents a pound, the best level since 1930.

Stocks selling under $20 a share were the most active of the day, with utilities prominent. The latter, though, were inclined to slip fractionally. Sugars were in supply and the merchandising division pointed lower.

Conspicuous gainers were Chrysler, General Motors, Hudson, Electric Auto-Lite, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Deere, Oliver Farm and American Can.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX — We have a seventeen-year-old daughter with whom we can do nothing and who is driving us wild with anxiety. We have been most indulgent. Have given her pretty clothes. Everything. She has her own automobile in which she tears around the country at breakneck speed without telling us where she is going or when she is coming back. And now she thinks she is in love with a young boy who has never had a job or made a dollar and has no way to support her. What would you advise us to do?

TROUBLED MOTHER.

Answer — Sell the automobile, to begin with. If she has no car you automatically restrict her activities to a certain extent. She can't roam from roadhouse to roadhouse at night on foot, and if she has no car in which to haul around a lot of wild hoodlums they will drop her for some one who has an automobile in which they can dead-beat their way about.

I get many letters from weak and overindulgent parents who bewail the fact that they have no control over their youngsters who are doing things which they should not do; going to places to which they should not go; generally skidding to destruction. These distraught fathers and mothers beat upon their breasts and moan: "What can we do? What can we do?" And answer themselves by saying: "Nothing."

Apparently it never occurs to them that they have the remedy in their own hands and that it is the simplest and most effective one possible. It consists in cracking down on their children's expenditures. In snapping shut the good old pocketbook. In taking away the automobiles in which they are hurtling to hell. In refusing to pay for the orgies in which their children indulge.

The lack of the price is the beginning of virtue. It takes money to give wild parties and buy liquor and go to hot night clubs. The kind of girls whom boys shouldn't know have scant use for the boy whose allowance is so small he can only feed them on sandwiches and beer and take them to the movies. The parasite boys who hang around girls who have their own cars and who are good for the loan of money after a little love-making, pass up those girls who are on foot and who have to save up for their finger waves.

The same heroic remedy would prevent ninety-nine out of a hundred of the tragic adolescent marriages that wreck so many young lives and break so many parents' hearts. A silly young girl and boy think they are in love and decide to get married. They know they have nothing to marry on, that the boy has no way of making a living, but they go on and get married anyway because they rely upon mother and father paying for their folly and supporting them.

But they would not marry if they knew absolutely that father meant it when he said that if they married they would have to stand on their own feet; that his door would be shut in their faces; that they couldn't wish off any husband or wife on him to take care of and that they would have to go hungry if they couldn't feed themselves. The modern youngsters are no fools. They know the value of a dollar down to the last penny, and mighty few of them would risk starvation for the sake of love. It is because they know their parents haven't the backbone to make them assume the responsibility for their acts that makes them rush into fool marriages.

If parents would quit financing their children's vices, there would be a mighty reformation among the youth of our land. It is just a mathematical certainty that John and Mary can't raise as much cash on $50 as they can on $500. Figure it out for yourselves and dad mum.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — My husband and I have been married for fifteen years and have two lovely children. I have always been a good and faithful wife and mother, a thrifty and economical housekeeper, and have done my duty the best I know how. But in all the time we have been married my husband has never taken me anywhere for pleasure. When he is home he always nags me about how much money I spend. He never gives me any extra money for clothes. I have to pinch the household money for weeks to get a pair of shoes. He always swears at me and calls me terrible names. He has never brought me a gift of any kind. And just these little things mean so much to a woman. What should a wife do under these circumstances?

Answer — I don't know what she can do except qualify, as you are doing, for a place among the saints and martyrs. Many a one has been canonized for less suffering than the woman who endures who has to go through a lifetime of suffering the insults and neglect of a husband who regrets being tied down by marriage and who takes out on his wife his discontent and his selfish fury at having to spend on his family the money he would like to spend on himself.

DEAR MISS DIX — Is it wrong for a woman to keep her age a secret from the man she is going to marry? If she looks ten years younger than she actually is, would it be terrible to pretend that she was that age?

Answer — A woman is as old as she looks and just how many birthdays she has had is her secret, which she is not bound to tell any one. (Copyright, 1937)

The Story of China

IX — SUN YAT-SEN AND THE REPUBLIC

The greatest leader in the revolt against the Manchus was Dr. Sun Yat-sen. He died about twelve years ago, but his memory lives. Many Chinese look upon him as one of their great heroes of all time. They think he fought to help the common man, and did much to start China on the way toward new and better things.

"Mandarins," paid bribes in order to obtain their places, then lived lives of luxury while they taxed people who were groaning in want.

All this led Dr. Sun to work with secret societies which he hoped would bring an end to the Manchurian dynasty. The government found out about his plans, and he would have been punished if he had not fled the country. After leaving China, he spent years in far travels. Wherever he went, he talked to Chinese who had settled there. He planned and plotted with people in "Chinatowns" of England and the United States. While in England he was kidnapped by the Chinese embassy, and was held prisoner in a room. Fearing he might meet death at the hands of the government, he addressed a letter to a friend in London and dropped it out of the window. The letter was picked up and delivered, and the friend succeeded in obtaining the help of the British government to bring about Sun's freedom.

Dr. Sun kept in touch with the secret societies in China by sending letters to them. He also raised money from Chinese residents of several countries. We are told that $5,000,000 was promised, and at least partly paid, by 1,500 Chinese living in China.

At last, toward the end of 1911, Sun Yat-sen believed the time had come to return to China. Revolt had broken out there, and he went back to take part in it. The rebels cheered him, and a meeting of delegates elected him "first president of the Chinese Republic."

A few battles took place between the royal armies and those who wanted a republic, but peace came more quickly than might have been expected. Officers of the Chinese army signed a letter saying they no longer would fight against the soldiers of the republic. This letter was sent to the emperor, and she gave up the throne held for her small son, "the boy emperor."

Dr. Sun Yat-sen

An Old Timer saw the hideous tableau revealed for a moment to his horrified gaze, the she-devil seized Kali Brava by the hair and forced back her head. Then the long knife flashed in the light of the cooking fires that had been prepared for the cannibal feast.

The white man burst through the gates and ran toward the ghastly scene. He was unarmed except for a pocket knife, but his actions were dictated by love rather than reason. And now, as the sacrificial knife flew toward its victim, a shout issued from his lips.

To the astonished pygmies it sounded like the war cry of attacking natives. At the same instant a mysterious arrow passed through the heart of Wiga, and the knife dropped from her dead hand. Old Tim was more than the pygmies, knew whence that arrow had come.

For a moment the small warriors stood in stupid astonishment, but the white man realized that their inactivity would be brief when they discovered they had a new and unarmed opponent to deal with. Then he would join Kali Brava as a prisoner marked for death!

Near Death Of Starvation

Three Children at Remote Alberta Homestead Found in Weak Condition

Canadian Press

Rimby, Alta., Jan. 14.—Three young sisters were critically ill in the hospital here today, all afflicted with ailments assertedly caused by virtual starvation in the impoverished home of their parents, penniless but unwilling to seek charity.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf Zina, are homesteaders in brush country about ninety-five miles southwest of Edmonton. Condition of the three children, Lillian (three), Herta (seven), and Alvina (eleven), was discovered after the father had telephoned Dr. John Byers of Rimby only after realizing Lillian was dying. She had been ill for a month and Herta and Alvina for several days.

When Dr. Byers, accompanied by Constable George Fordham of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, reached the Gustaf homestead he found seven children practically starving, and almost naked. The father said he had feared to call a doctor for Lillian sooner because he had no money to pay for medicine or hospitalization, and did not want charity.

Alaska Mails

Dr. Byers and Constable Fordham found that feather ticks provided the only coverings for two beds in the house. No blankets were available to wrap about the children to bring them to Rimby. The father took off his coat and the mother her sweater and with the addition of a car rug and Dr. Byers' coat, the children were covered for the long, cold trip to Rimby.

VICTORIA BOYS GOING TO SEA

Peter Piddington, A. Moore, George Clarke and Peter Marchant Start Careers

Another group of Victoria boys will shortly start out on the careers that some day will take them to sea on the bridges and in the engine-rooms of merchant and naval vessels.

George Clarke, son of the late Engineer-Commander G. P. Clarke, R.C.N., and Mrs. Clarke of Hampshire Road, will leave tomorrow for Port Alberni to join the British freighter Beljonne and sail for England. He will take an engineering course in the works of the John I. Thornycroft Company at Southampton.

Young Clarke, who has been active in the Rainbow Sea Cadet Corps, will follow in the footsteps of his father, who was in England in connection with the construction of H.M.C.S. Skeena for the Canadian navy when he died some years ago.

Peter Marchant, son of Captain and Mrs. C. Stanhope Marchant of Monterey Avenue, also a former member of the Rainbow corps, who left sometime ago for England, has secured a berth aboard the freighter City of Mobile of the Ellerman, Bucknall Line, as a cadet. He hopes to work his way to the top, some day becoming a master mariner.

A. Moore, leading seaman and expert rifle shot with the Sea Cadets, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Moore of Maddock Avenue, last week joined the Canadian navy as boy seaman. He will serve a term in the naval barracks at Esquimalt before being placed at sea.

Peter Piddington, son of Major and Mrs. A. O. Piddington, and a warrant officer in the cadet corps, has been accepted as a cadet in the royal navy and will shortly leave for England to report for duty.

"Danger Zones" Are Discussed

Associated Press

Los Angeles, Jan. 14.—Federal investigators concentrated today on eliminating "danger zones" from western air routes while medical science struggled to save all the eleven injured survivors of Tuesday's transport crash.

Two men were fatally hurt when the Western Air Express plane, on the way from Salt Lake City, crashed on a Newhall Pass ridge in a snowstorm fifteen miles from the landing field here.

No inquest will be conducted for the victims—Marion Johnson, jungle inventor, and James A. Braden, of Cleveland—until the eight other passengers and crew of three have recovered sufficiently to appear as witnesses.

Four were reported today in a grave condition.

A new passenger air service linking London with the Far East will be established next June or July. Work will be begun in April on the Egypt-India section, with an India-Singapore extension installed a little later.

When the service is completed, there will be five weekly flights between London, Karachi and Calcutta. Two will be made by seaplanes, two by land planes.

Vancouver Shipping

Vancouver, Jan. 14.—The Dominion Government's subsidy to the Silver-Java-Pacific Line for its South African service will be relinquished with the sailing of the Ms. Mapia, now in port. It was understood here today.

The subsidy has been granted to the Ocean Shipping Company Limited, Vancouver, which will probably initiate a monthly South Africa service some time in February.

The former company, it is believed, will continue its service. Its next South African ship is Ms. Silverbell, due here February 15.

The American Mail Line yesterday reported Ms. Viking Star of the Blue Star Line would shift her from New Westminster January 18. The next day she will sail for the United Kingdom with fresh and frozen Canadian products, lumber, grain and general cargo.

Ss. Tudor Star of the same line is due here January 17. She will sail about four days later.

Arms Ship Races Away From New York Harbor

Full speed ahead, the Spanish loyalist steamship Mar Cantabria races out of New York harbor with the United States coastguard patrol boat Texas in hot pursuit—alliance of Robert C. Hooper's fleet of boats to beat the new neutrality law to the high seas with a cargo of planes for Spain. The Mar Cantabria was chased to a writ of attachment obtained by Bert Acosta, aviator, who claimed the Madrid government owed him $5,000 for services "with its army." After the freighter was stopped, a loophole permitted it to proceed.

Pacific Isles To Be Surveyed

Cutter Sails For Small Islands Which U.S. Annexed From Great Britain

Associated Press

Honolulu, Jan. 14.—Carrying replacements and equipment for United States equatorial territory, the coastguard cutter Duane sailed yesterday for Howland, Baker and Jarvis Islands, which have assumed an increasingly important strategic role in mid-Pacific development.

Officially it was announced the trip was only routine. But the presence aboard the Duane of Robert Campbell, divisional inspector of airports, was interpreted as indicating steps might be taken toward development of the islands as flying bases.

They lie on possible air routes between Hawaii and New Zealand and Australia. If used as military air bases in war time, they would extend by 1,500 miles the United States' aerial defence line across the Pacific.

Until the United States annexed them, Howland, Baker and Jarvis Islands were claimed by Great Britain. Recently New Zealand was said to have sent two warships on a survey cruise of British Islands for a possible all-British airline from Australia to Honolulu.

Rotarians To Visit Europe

Several Thousand of This Continent Will Go to Convention at Nice

Between 4,000 and 5,000 Rotarians from Canada and the United States will sail from Canadian and United States ports at the end of April and during May to attend the Rotary International Convention to be held at Nice, on the French Riviera, June 6 to June 11.

Many will leave Montreal and Quebec by the Canadian Pacific liners Duchess of Athol, on April 30, and the Duchess of Athol again from Montreal on May 28, and the Empress of Australia from Quebec May 29, three of the official convention sailings. On her voyage of May 28, the Duchess of Athol will go direct to Havre, June 4, being her scheduled arrival at the French port.

A number of pre-convention and coronation tours in connection with the Rotary gathering have been arranged by the American Express Company, and Thos. Cook and Son, and many members of these tours will leave in the Duchess of Athol April 30.

These organizations have also arranged a variety of post-convention tours covering almost every European country and of various length, from four to twelve weeks.
